FIRE BUG SET U. & D. FREIGHT HOUSE ON FIRE

But Flames Were Discovered in Time by Policeman Keresman—Fire Started in Three Different Places—The Third Incendiary Fire in Short Time—Police Round Up Sleepers.

But for the fact that Policeman Keresman was passing at the time the big Ulster & Delaware Railroad freight house on Cornell street would have been destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock this morning. The officer when he discovered the fire immediately turned in an alarm of fire from Box 63, Smith avenue and O'Neil street, to which the fire department responded, and extinguished the flames before the fire caused much damage. The fire was of incendiary origin and an attempt had been made to fire the building from three different places.

Police Investigate.

When it was found that the fire was the work of a fire bug, the police immediately started an investigation. Patrol Driver "Sime" Wood rounded up William Dudley, Louis Shaw and George Davidson, three strangers, who were found asleep in a baggage car on the U. & D. tracks near the freight house, while he found Harvey Delamater of this city, asleep in an out house nearby. All four were taken to police headquarters and will be arraigned before Judge Schirick later.

None of the four are thought to know anything about the fire.

Where Fire Was Started.

Deputy Fire Chief Murphy and Chief of Police J. Allan Wood both made an investigation of the fire and found that an attempt had been made to set fire to the big doors on both sides of the freight house while the third fire had been started on the wooden platform used to load and unload freight from the cars.

Door Was Burning.

One of the doors was on fire when the firemen reached the scene but they soon extinguished the blaze.

Loose hay had been used to stuff in between the door and the casing and also under the cracks of the door and the floor, and then a match applied. Another heap of hay had been gathered together on the platform and a match applied.

Two of the fires had failed to ignite the building, but the third fire, at one of the entrance doors, had just got started and was burning when the firemen arrived.

Work of Fire Bug.

Deputy Chief Murphy and Chief Wood are both positive that the fire was the work of a fire bug.

Chief Wood is of the opinion that the same fire bug who tried to fire the freight house set fire to the Stewart barn on Downs street and the Ten Broeck barn on Albany avenue.

Hope to Locate Fire Bug.

Chief Wood said that every effort would be used to apprehend the fire bug, and from what has been so far ascertained the police believe that they have a good working theory. What that theory is, of course, was not made public.

Recalls Fire Bug's Work.

The fact that this was the third incendiary fire within a short time recalls the work of a fire bug several years ago who kept both the fire department and the police busy for some time, and caused considerable damage, especially in the uptown section of the city.

Residents who see anyone lurking near buildings would do well to immediately call up police headquarters. In this way the fire bug's career can be cut short before any considerable damage is committed by his acts.

RAIN NEEDED

In Parts of State As Showers Were Insufficient.

The past week was marked by extremely high temperature, especially during the first half, according to the summary of weather and crop conditions for the week ending July 12, sent out from the Ithaca office of the weather bureau. Rain is badly needed over most of the state, although showers relieved the drought locally. The severest drought is being experienced generally over the counties bordering on Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River. In Oswego county lawns are burned red, and the foliage of shade trees is dropping. Farmers suspended afternoon work in some localities because of the extreme heat.

The wheat harvest is well under way over the southern half of the state, and some rye is also being cut. Haying continued, but with little improvement in yield. Oats are nearly ready to cut in the southern tier of counties. Corn and potatoes generally made good growth, and some early potatoes are being dug.

PNEUMONIA OR NOT.

Shoe Dealers Say Oxfords Will be Worn This Winter.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 13.—Young men are toeing the fashion line as carefully as women when it comes to shoes, and oxfords will be worn all this winter by half the male population, delegates to the annual convention of the New York State Retail Shoe Dealers' Association here declare. It is predicted shoe prices will be no lower this winter and may be even a little higher. Albany will be the meeting place in 1922.

HEALTH BOARD MET TUESDAY

Mayor Canfield presided at the regular monthly meeting of the board of health held Tuesday evening at the city hall with Commissioners McBride, Kaufman, Mahar and Dr. Huhne present. The other two members of the board, Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Mrs. Hattie B. Michael, are out of town enjoying their annual vacations.

Aside from hearing the reports read the board transacted no business. The reports, which were adopted, will be found elsewhere. Since Mayor Canfield assumed office the board has conferred on the health officer and other officers the power to correct trivial complaints as fast as they are received, and only complaint of a serious nature are brought before the board for attention.

PRIZE HAS DWINDLED

Bequest In Will Predicated Upon War With Japan.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paterson, N. J., July 13.—A prize of 5,000 German marks awaits the first American naval crew to capture or sink a Japanese warship in case of war between the United States and Japan.

Charles O. H. Fritzsche, noted local engineer, inventor of locomotive turntable, set that sum aside in his will, just sent from Germany to be probated here. Fritzsere was in Germany at the outbreak of the war and was interned. He died at Dresden last New Year's day.

Pending the outbreak of the war which Fritzsche looked for, income from the 5,000 marks trust fund is to go to buy fire wood for Paterson's poor.

(Note: Five thousand marks at the present rate of exchange is about $50.)

Bar Polish Fatal to Two.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 13.—Joseph Salawa, 35, and Stanley Ulis, 30, took a drink of bar polish, supposing it to be gin, at a South Side hotel today, and in a few minutes they were dead. They were delivering ice to the hotel. The hotel proprietor was polishing his bar when the men entered. Two bottles of colorless liquid were on the bar. The ice men helped themselves and got the wrong bottle.

Martin's Knuckle Broke.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—Bob Martin broke the knuckle at the base of the second finger on his right hand, in his bout with Frank Moran Tuesday night according to his physician today. He had previously dislocated the finger in a bout with Gunboat Smith. Manager Jimmy Bronson said an X-ray photograph of the injured finger will be taken at once. The break is not thought to be particularly serious.

WHY CITY LOCKUP WAS VERY DIRTY

State Inspector Rogers Inspected It June 24 and Reports it "Dirty"—Is Used Almost Exclusively by Lodgers Who Should be Made to Clean Up Filth.

Commissioner Charles S. Rogers, of the state commission of prisons, reports an inspection made of the Kingston city hall lockup on June 24, and says: "This jail is located in the basement of the city hall. It has been described in former reports of inspection.

"It was not clean and presented a neglected appearance. The toilets and sinks were very dirty, and the general condition of the jail could not be called sanitary. I was told that the plumbing was being repaired:

"The arrests during the past three months were as follows:

	Males	Females	Lodgers
March	33	0	270
April	51	1	251
May	88	1	213

"If prisoners are to be detained for any length of time they are taken to the section of the county jail used for city prisoners.

"It is recommended that the jail be cleaned and kept cleaned."

That Inspector Rogers found the lockup "very dirty" is undoubtedly a fact, but to those who do not know conditions it may be well to explain that the lockup at the hall is used largely by lodgers, and but very few prisoners are kept in it, and that but for a few hours at the most.

Every morning it is found necessary for the janitor of the city hall to clean out the cells with a hose for the lodgers are mostly of the down and out variety of males, and they have sunk so low in the scale of life that they are very filthy. Body vermin is found on them, and they act as though they had never used a toilet before in their life.

What should be done, and where the authorities are negligent, is to make the lodgers clean up their filth every morning before leaving the lockup. The odor from the lockup early in the morning before it is cleaned is sometimes beyond description.

DAYLIGHT AUTO THIEVES HERE

Daring automobile thieves stepped into a Ford roadster owned by Charles E. Leppert of No. 511 Hamilton street, Schenectady, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and drove away with it. He had left his car parked on Broadway, near Cedar street. About an hour later he reported the matter to the police who immediately began an investigation and were able to trace the car as far as Stone Ridge where the trail was lost.

As far as known this was the first time that an automobile had been stolen from the city's main thoroughfare during the busy afternoon hours. With so many cars parked along the street, and with so much traffic passing up and down Broadway it was an easy matter for the two thieves to select a car which had been left parked and drive away.

The Ford runabout carried the license number 977103 N. Y., and the motor number is 4057085. The car is a 1920 model painted black. It had two Goodrich tires on the front wheels and Goodyear tires on the rear wheels.

FORGED ROOSEVELT'S NAME

Is Charge Against Mrs. Emma R. Burkett.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—The police department today was awaiting word from the authorities at Hillsdale, Indiana, relative to its telegraphic request yesterday that Mrs. Emma R. Burkett of that place be put under arrest on a charge of forging the name of the late Theodore Roosevelt, former president.

It is charged that Mrs. Burkett forged the name of Colonel Roosevelt as endorser of a promisory note for $69,900, which the woman alleged she had loaned Charles J. Shunson at the Progressive convention in Chicago in 1912. The request for Mrs. Burkett's arrest was made following an investigation by Assistant District Attorney Dooling, made at the request of Mrs. Roosevelt and George Emlen Roosevelt, executor of the late former president's estate.

BIG KOBE STRIKE

Stops Japanese Naval Work—Workers May Seize Yards.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokio, July 13.—Naval construction work in Japan is at a stand still today as a result of the strike of 20,000 workers in the Kobe shipyards and sympathetic strikes elsewhere. A council of workmen has been formed at Kobe to take over the shipyards.

Arrested For Jewel Robbery.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York July 13—With the arrest today of John Sulak, a coppersmith, a $30,000 jewel robbery directly across the street from the East 67th street station, was revealed for the first time. Sulak is charged with taking the jewels from the apartment of Mrs. Marie Lake. Mrs. Lake's maid disappeared following the theft. Police charge she is Sulak's wife and say she fled to a foreign country.

LONDON WANTS FIRST PARLEY

Asks If United States Would Join in Conference in London to Settle Far East Problems Before Disarmament Council Begins in Washington.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13,—The United States has been approached by Great Britain to determine whether this government would consent to join in a conference to be held in London to discuss the question of world policy in the Pacific, as a preliminary to the disarmament conference in Washington proposed by the president, it was learned authoritatively this afternoon.

Secretary of State Hughes has discussed the matter with the president, but there has been no intimation of the atttitude of this government.

SILK THIEVES ARRESTED

After Battle on 20-Story Loft Building Roof.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—Following a battle with revolvers and clubs on top of a twenty story loft building on 38th street near Fifth avenue early today, police took into custody four men who, the police charge, were attempting to steal silks worth thousands of dollars.

When trapped by the police three of the men were holding a rope over the side of the building on the end of which dangled the fourth man, thirty feet below. The police said the men were lowering their companion in that way to avoid setting off the burglar alarm attached to the fire escapes. The police believe the four are responsible for several robberies recently in the loft district in which merchandise valued at $150,000 has been stolen. The four gave their names as Benjamin Bernstein, Morris Greenberg, Jacob Harris and Izzy Pullin.

Deer Visits Store.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Glens Falls, N. Y., July 13.—A fawn, wandering and bewildered, dashed through the streets of this city yesterday afternoon a little before dusk, stumbling and blundering amid the strange surroundings until he leaped to the foot of a flight of steps leading to the basement of one of the large stores on the principal street of the city. A troop of excited persons who had given chase when they saw the animal darting through the city, included Game Protector Morgan B. Leland. He removed the trembling deer and conveyed him in an automobile back to his sylvan haunts adjacent to the waters of the Hudson river.

Lloyds Win Rain Bet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., July 13.—The cards of fate are stacked against the St. Louis Municipal Opera Association. Rain insurance doesn't pay, say officials of the organization. For eighteen days the association has bet Lloyds $60 to $1,000 that more than a tenth of an inch of rain would fall on the Railway Exchange Building roof, twenty stories high, between 4 and 8 p. m. While heavy showers have prevented presentation of operas in the west and open air theatres, only slight sprinkles have fallen atop the specified building.

Mexico Has Alaskan Consul.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Seattle, Wash., July 13.—Rodolfo Ramirez, Mexican Consul at Antwerp when the Germans bombarded the town and awarded the decoration of the Order of Leopold by King Albert for his service to humanity in relief work, has been named by President Obregon as Consul at Juneau, Alaska, and is the first consul any foreign nation ever has sent to Alaska. Ramirez sailed for Juneau on the S. S. Alameda leaving Seattle, June 26.

Greeks Quickly Halted.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, July 13.—The Greek offensive against the Turkish Nationalists has been checked all along the line, according to a Constantinople dispatch to the Petit Parisien today. The Greeks were said to have sustained heavy losses. The same dispatch stated that the Greeks were evacuating Ouchak and that they had been driven from Chuma. The Turkish Nationalists are mining the sea of Marmora.

Wooden Leg Saves Life.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 13.—A wooden leg saved the life of George Smith, fifty-two, owner of a houseboat on the Missouri River. When his boat capsized the artificial leg was caught in a door of the little vessel. In a frantic effort to escape he battered the wooden leg with an iron rod until he broke it effecting his release. His escape was enacted under the water.

TIMES ATTACKS LLOYD-GEORGE

He and Curzon Utterly Unfit to Represent Britain at Conference—One Denounced For Trickiness and Other For Pompous Incapacity.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 13.—In an article discussing the personnel of the British delegation to President Harding's proposed international conference the Times today printed a scorching attack against Premier Lloyd-George.

"Both Premier Lloyd-George and Marquis Curzon, the foreign secretary, are unfit to represent Great Britain," said the Times.

"It is notorious that no government and no statesman has any confidence in Premier Lloyd-George.

"Marquis Curzon's pompous, pretentious manner and business incapacity unfit him."

The Times revealed that the dominion premiers were discussing plans for Great Britain to take the initiative in Far East conference when the first notification of President's Harding's offer was received.

According to the Evening Standard the British admiralty suggests that the big powers rest upon sea strength of 30 capital ships of which 16 be in full commission.

The Daily Telegraph expressed the belief that the American people are willing to stabilize naval armaments on the basis of the same strength for all.

Five nations have now accepted President Harding's invitation, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and China. The most enthusiastic response has been given to the disarmament proposal. While France announces that she will go into the conference without reservations, the French press makes it apparent that France will seek guarantees to protect herself from Germany and Poland from Russia.

TAX REVISION FOLLOWS TARIFF

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13.—The work of preparing a tax revision bill was taken up today by the house ways and means committee.

Experts from the internal revenue bureau and committee officials sat down to frame a tentative draft of the changes to be made in the internal revenue laws along lines recommended by the treasury and approved generally by the ways and means committee.

The tentative draft will be used as a working model by the committee as soon as it is freed of its duties is connection with the tariff bill, which it is now busily engaged in putting through the house. Members of the committee expect to settle down to tax revision in earnest on Monday July 25.

According to Representative Longworth, there will be little delay in completing the draft of the new tax laws. He stated that within two weeks from passage of the tariff bill the house will get the tax bill from the committee.

While such speed may not be possible, it is the purpose of house leaders to jam tax revision through the house not later than August 20.

Until the tariff bill is passed by the house Ways and Means Committee members can give little thought to tax revision. The committee is meeting every morning to consider amendments to the tariff bill that are being urged by house Republican members. The debate is developing the need of changes in various items in the bill, and these must be considered by the committee for their bearing on the general scheme of rates in the bill.

House Republicans do not accept with complaisance the frequent reports from the senate that the tariff bill is to undergo "reconstruction" after it reaches the senate finance committee. They are insistent also that there shall be tariff legislation at the present session and that the bill shall not be shunted over to the next session of congress by the senate as has been intimated. Representative Green, Iowa, asserted today there can be no just revision of tax laws until it has been ascertained with some degree of certainty what revenues are to be derived from tariff taxation.

IRISH CONFERENCE PLANS COMPLETE

De Valera Presides At Delegation Meeting And Exchanges Messages With Downing Street—Good Deal Of Pessimism In Some Quarters.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 13.—Final plans for the conference tomorrow between Eammon De Valera, "president of the Irish republic," and Premier Lloyd-George were completed today. Following a meeting of the Irish delegation at noon, De Valera exchanged messages with 10 Downing street (the official residence of the premier) regarding tomorrow arrangements.

A formal meeting of the Irish delegation was held at noon at which DeValera presided.

Premier Lloyd-George was not in London, as he had gone to his country estate at Chequers.

London, July 13.—Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish republic," spent today conferring with Sinn Fein and English political leaders preliminary to his meeting with Premier Lloyd-George tomorrow.

The Daily Telegraph warns against undue optimism, pointing out that the Dublin conferences between the Sinn Fein and the Southern Ireland Unionists were successful because all concerned carefully avoided anything definite on Ulster.

So far there is no sign of a compromise between Dublin and Ulster. On the contrary, Ronald MacNeill, M. P., one of the Ulster leaders, told the International News Service that he was sure that the London peace parley would fail owing to De Valera's insistence upon a republic in Ireland.

"If England gives the Sinn Fein complete independence, I see nothing for it but for Ulster to fortify her frontiers and prepare for civil war," said Mr. MacNeill. "So far as the conference concerns Ulster, her position is that it has nothing to do with the southern province.

"Ulster has her own parliament and her own constitution. She will refuse to allow them to be interfered with on any question. Any concessions on these points by Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, means immediate repudiation. The position taken by Sir Maurice Dockrell and Lord Midleton (two Southern Ireland Unionists) means nothing to the Unionists of Ulster. They are simply De Valera's nominees. As for De Valera, it is certain he would not be allowed to negotiate except at the risk of his life on any basis but that of complete independence, and that is out of the question. Therefore, while I am anxious for Irish peace, I am without hope.

"It would have been better if a conference had never been proposed, but instead, more troops had been sent into Ireland. The present atmosphere should not have been allowed to rise. It only misleads public opinion.

"Englishmen and Americans do not understand Irishmen. They are unable to comprehend the meaning of the word compromise. I regard the west and south of Ireland just as I do the Balkan states in southweastern Europe. My chief fears are for the 350,000 southern Unionists, who, if the British troops are withdrawn, must either evacuate the country or be exterminated. Their plight is pitiably awful."

Large bodies of auxiliary police, who were granted leave of absence in Ireland on account of the armistice, are arriving in England.

There was much public curiosity over De Valera and crowds gathered about the Grosvenor Hotel hoping to get a glimpse of him. The Sinn Fein leader did not much resemble the head of a republic when he arrived. His hair was long and tousled. He wore an old tweed suit much wrinkled. His soft collar was melted down. De Valera's face is deeply lined with wrinkles, evidence of the heavy strain he has been under. He told his friends that he was much gratified with the ovation given him and that he thought it augured well for his mission.

HARDING HOPES ASS'N OF NATIONS WILL RESULT

But This Proposal Will Not Be Thrust on Allies at Conference—No Sign That Germany Will be Invited—Far East Problems First.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13.—Interest in President Harding's proposed disarmament conference centered today on the allied reaction to official intimations here that the conference might lead to the establishment of an association of nations.

Although it is stated in official circles here that the administration would be very happy if the association of nations should be born out of the disarmament conference, it was rather plainly indicated that this proposal will not be thrust upon the allies as one of the tasks of the proposed parley, although it may be an outgrowth.

Administration leaders today were confronted with the problem of pacifying nations which have not been invited to the conference, but it was indicated that the president will not consider the enlargement of the conference at this time, holding that too large representation would simply confuse the work and delay it. Suggestions made by the British dominion premiers that a preliminary conference be held at which the questions of the Pacific and the Far East be discussed did not meet with favor here. Administration leaders were of the opinion that the dominion premiers, while having a right to a voice in the proposed conference, should express their views through the British representative, and that the solidification of the views of Great Britain and her dominions is a matter which should be worked out in the dominion conferences now going on.

There was no indication here today that the president might extend his invitation to other nations, and while it was announced that the proposed conference would not interfere with the course of the administration in proceeding to make formal peace with Germany, there was no intimation that Germany might be invited into the parley, after peace has been established.

The administration is hopeful that the question of policy in the Far East may be taken up first by the proposed conference and that settlement of the fundamental principles which this government believes are necessary to maintain peace in the Far East will logically lead to a disarmament agreement. It is the hope of the administration that all parties to the conference will come with their policies fairly well defined and that there will be no delays while questions at issue are made the subject of protracted discussions by the home governments.

Although the acceptance of Japan, the final acceptance, is reported from London, the administration has not received Japan's formal notification this morning, although there was every reason for officials to believe that the Far Eastern nation would finally agree to enter the conference.

TWO CONFERENCES.

Lloyd-George Said To Have Plan Of Own.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, July 13.—Premier Lloyd-George's intimation that there would be two international conferences, one in London to discuss Far East problems, to which France would not be invited, and another at Washington in the autumn to discuss disarmament to which France would be invited, came as a surprise to French officials, said "Pertinax," political editor of the Echo De Paris, today.

French officials were under the impression that only one conference would be held, that it would take place at Washington, that it would canvass both the Pacific problems and disarmament and that all the leading powers would participate.

"The error of 1918, when President Wilson and Premier Lloyd-George were permitted to reach a private understanding on the eve of the peace conference should not be repeated," said "Pertinax."

"In view of France's large interests in Cochin, China, it would be surprising if she were not invited to the conference on Pacific problems," said the Petit Parisien.

FARMS FOR SALE.

Annual State List Soon To Be Issued.

The State Department of Farms and Markets, through the Bureau of Farm Settlement, is preparing to issue its annual bulletin listing farms for sale or to rent in New York state. Farms which are listed in this bulletin are for the purpose of attracting settlers to the farms of this state, without charge.

Large numbers of farmers from other states and countries are asking for information concerning farms for sale in New York state, and also for data in regard to the agricultural possibilities of the state. The bulletin gives brief descriptions of farms which are an excellent investment to those experienced in farming.

Any land owner who wishes to have his farm listed in the bulletin may obtain a blank for that purpose by writing to the Department of Farms and Markets, Bureau of Farm Settlement, Albany, N. Y.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Frock For Silk, Cloth Or Cotton.

Pattern 3491 was used for this desirable model. It is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10 year size will require 3⅞ yards of 38 inch material. The panel may be omitted, and the sleeves finished in wrist or elbow length.

Voile and lace, taffeta and ribbon, serge and satin, could be combined for this design. It is also good for velvet, linen, gingham and percale.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or 1c and 2c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Free-Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer 1921 catalogue, containing 550 designs of Ladies', Misses and Childrens Patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness during the sickness and death of our beloved son and brother, Thomas H. Johnson; also for the beautiful floral tributes. (Signed) Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters.—Advertisement.

Card of Thanks.

I herewith extend my thanks to friends and neighbors for the kind assistance shown toward me during the illness and death of my husband. Also to the Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen for the beautiful floral tributes, and to Undertaker Leo V. Grogan for the manner in which he conducted the funeral arrangements. With your yard full of flowers, are you making it possible for some one who hasn't an abundance to share their cheer?

Aunt Ada's Axioms: Where the woman has all the task of homemaking, it can't be as homelike as where all the family helps.

String beans from the home garden may be preserved for use next winter either by canning or by salting. Don't fail to get your supply.

All play and no work makes Jack an irresponsible boy. The same applies to Jill. Mothers may well remember this during the long summer vacation.

For waterproofing the youngsters' shoes did you ever try a mixture, applied warm, of equal parts of white pine tar, neatsfoot oil and beeftallow?

The screen door is likely to get to looking shabby late in the summer. Sometimes laying it on the lawn and scrubbing with soap and water will renew its youth.

Some housewives see to it that the milk is taken to cellar or refrigerator immediately after it is left on the porch. Others are all the while complaining that the milk man leaves them sour milk.

AT THE THEATERS.

Wallace Reid at Keeney's—Louise Huff at Auditorium.

Another breezy automobile romance serves as the latest starring vehicle for Wallace Reid. This time it's "What's Your Hurry?" showing at Keeney's tonght. Pathe Review, Kinograms, Literary Digest and a Mutt and Jeff cartoon are also featured. For three days starting Thursday, Norma Talmadge in the great New York stage success, "Yes or No?"

Louise Huff in "T'other Dear Charmer," a comedy romance of a beautiful "vamp" who tried to woo another girl's sweetheart and got the "trimming of her life," is showing at the Auditorium. Also Eileen Sedgewick in "The Diamond Queen," the sensational chapter play that takes one to the diamond mines of South Africa and return in a thrilling chase around the world. The comedy is "Chick, Chick," a two part hot weather forgetter. Thursday Art Accord in "The White Horeman."

HURLEY.

Hurley, July 12.—J. Ten Eyck Newkirk, a successful business man of Newark, N. J., was in town the week of the Fourth, renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Newkirk was born here and lived his boyhood in one of the most picturesque spots of Hurley.

D. C. Wynkoop of Kingston was entertained at the Brink farm over the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Markie of Selkirk, N. Y., have returned to their home after a long visit with relatives here.

Robert Iremonger was a week-end guest at Charles DuMond's, returning to New York with Mrs. Iremonger.

The Fourth ushered in the season here, and it is pleasant to note the many familiar faces that have returned for the summer. Bathing is popular these hot days, to say nothing of our ice cream parlors, a welcome innovation.

Mrs. Claude Palen is spending some time with friends on Long Island.

William Wyness, who spent several weeks with his family here, has gone on a business trip to Idaho.

Since Hurley is really "on the map," why does not some or all of our public spirited citizens agitate the matter of controlling traffic somewhat, that is, stop reckless driving of autos and motorcycles through the village street? It is nothing to our credit surely to be neglectful regarding a matter of such vital importance as human life, for we certainly "chance it" most any hour of the day in an attempt to cross the road way.

Mrs. George Fannin of Fulton, N. Y., motored here recently, accompanied by her four interesting children and spent a week visiting familiar and much loved haunts of childhood. Mrs. Fannin who was Miss Maude DuMond before her marriage to Judge Fannin, stopped here before going into the Adirondacks, where she and her family spend their summers.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, July 12—The Fourth of July celebration which was held in this place under the auspices of the Methodist Church, was one of the most successful and enjoyable affairs of its kind ever held here. Probably the most enjoyed spectacle of the day's program was the street parade. This parade was headed by the Salvation Army band of Kingston. The floats representing the Grange, Ladies' Aid Society, and the Builders' Class were very effective. There were tastefully decorated automobiles, among them one representing the Prudential Life Insurance Company, driven by Miss Dorothy Palen. The Men's Bible Class marched in grotesque costume, and furnished some burlesque "music." The Girl Scouts made a fine appearance. The goat, with decorated harness and cart, driven by Ivan Hungarford, was very much admired. The parade was headed by Officer Peter Wells, who had a splendid mount. The net proceeds from the day's sales will amount to over a hundred and twenty-five dollars.

The Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Miss Margaret Hardenburg and Miss Carrie Muller, are going for a week's camping on Mount Tremper.

Miss Marie Heffern is the guest of Mrs. Kate Snyder.

Miss Dorothy Palen is in Middletown, N. Y.

P. A. Clark and R. C. Ellis, both of Brooklyn, were week-end guests in the home of James Brink.

ULSTER PARK.

Ulster Park, July 13.—The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a social Friday evening on the parsonage lawn.

Mrs. Etta Corbett of New York city is visting Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Van Aken.

Ernest Eckert of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday with his parents here.

Miss Ada LeFever of Oyster Bay is the guest of Miss Ruth DeGraff.

Among the 4th of July guests entertained by Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Van Aken were Jesse Van Aken and daughter, Florence, of New York city.

Mrs. I. Magley and daughter, Mrs. Ernest Eckert, are visiting friends in Germantown.

The Ladies' Aid will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Gardner have moved to Shady.

Miss Rosa Davis spent several days recently at her home in Shady.

Mrs. Norman Coutant of Highland called on friends in this place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jason Sahler of New Paltz spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sahler here.

Mrs. LeGrand Doyle of Port Ewen spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Doyle here.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Haines and grandson, Sam Carmen, of St. Remy were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sahler.

Miss Marion Seamon of Poughkeepsie is the guest of Miss Dorothy Hermance.

GRAND GORGE.

Grand Gorge, July 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coons of Kingston were Fourth of July visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Buswell.

Miss Lillian M. Buswell is visiting her uncle, Seth N. Everett, at New Haven.

During a heavy thunder storm on Friday a bolt of lightning struck and killed 12 cows belonging to John M. Cronk.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Buswell and family motored to Poughkeepsie on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Clapp and family spent the Fourth at Haines Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dix are entertaining relatives from Carbondale, Pa.

Sergeant Scanlon of the Board of Water Supply Police spent a few days last week at his home in West Shokan.

SHAWL AND SCARF

Spanish Shoulder Decoration Bids for Popularity.

Summer Girl of 1921 May Find Apparel Useful and Distinctively Ornamental.

Off and on there have been rumors to the effect that shawls were lurking just around the corner ready to be introduced in high society. So they were—the gorgeous Spanish shawl variety, heavy with blazing colored silk embroidery, usually in floral design, although their use was naturally restricted to what was once known as candle light.

Women have worn these shawls to operas and theaters the past winter, just as last year they wore resplendent mandarin wraps; but it can hardly be truthfully stated that shawls are in vogue. They have their little part to play, but that is all.

One might easily imagine that the summer girl of 1921 might find such shawls useful and distinctively ornamental, one knows, of course, that fashion again—attached usually to the shoulder of a frock. If seems illogical to dip a cape into a point at the back, for tunic and hem lines have a way of hiking up in the front and pointing at either side, or in the center of the back.

SATIN FOR WEDDING GOWNS

Ivory Material With Soft Laces Favorite—Bride Is Duty-Bound to Look Beautiful.

If there is one day of your life on which you deserve to be the center of the stage, it is on your wedding day. And for your wedding which you have announced, you must be now prepared. Not only will you plan your wedding gown yourself but you will plan the gown of every maid and flower girl so there will be no disturbing note.

For the gown itself nothing rivals ivory satin and soft laces of a thousand memories. Though the ways in which it can be fashioned are legion, some of the ultra-smart brides are affecting the mode which goes without sleeves altogether. Their skirts are short and the lace drapings hang in points below the hem.

There is something classic about the ivory brocaded velvet which some brides are selecting and having fashioned in the straightest and plainest of lines.

The neck is most often cut quite low, in that round, girlish effect.

Veils are being variously worn, but the preference seems to be for the simple arrangement. A lovely effect is achieved by a band of pearls which circles the head and holds the misty folds of tulle beneath, forgetting entirely any ruchings or "stand up" effects.

Even Knitted Capes.

When there are knitted capes to be seen on the street in New York almost every day. They are in quiet grays and tans and taupes usually, although some brighter ones have made their appearance, and with very good effect. Some of these knitted capes are long to cover up the whole of the arm, and again others of them are short enough to extend just below the waistline. With the shorter one it is quite the smart thing to wear a dress made of the same knitted material, and that, too, must be on the severest lines in order to fulfill its part in the necessary smartness.

Skirts for Summer.

While silk and cotton probably will retain the favorite materials for skirts for summer wear, there is said to be a notable increase in interest in flannel skirtings. Some fashion experts are inclined to attribute this to the vogue for sports style, or mannish effects.

Cindy's Ups and Downs.

Concord.

Plain as our landscape is, it has special attractions for the scholar who courts quiet surroundings, scenery not too exciting, yet stimulating to genial and uninterrupted studies. If the hills command no very broad horizon, the prospect is sufficiently sylvan to give an agreeable variety without confusing the mind, while the river in good part compensates for the sameness as it winds sluggishly along the confines of the village, flowing by the monument into the distance through the meadows. Thoreau, writing of it, jocosely says: "It is remarkable for the gentleness of its current, which is hardly perceptible, and some have ascribed to its influence the proverbial moderation of the inhabitants of Concord, as celebrated in the Revolution and on other occasions. It has been proposed that the town should adopt for its coat of arms a field verdant, with the Concord river circling nine times round it."—"Table Talk," A. Bronson Alcott.

Torturing Dances.

Torturing dances by fanatics on the edge of the Sahara desert were described by Wentworth Field, a Chicago merchant, who arrived in New York recently. Relating what he saw on a tour of Africa, Field said: "Another motor trip took us to the town of Kairouan, about 100 miles south of Tunic. We arrived there in the midst of the greatest religious festival of the year being celebrated by the Aissowas, an Arab tribe. One feature of the dance was piercing the cheeks of the dancers with long steel rods, and also thrusting the rods through the fleshy parts of their bodies. The fervidness with which they prayed, we were told, was responsible for the failure of blood to flow. Other dancers ate scorpions and ground glass. If they suffered any pain we could not notice it."

Aboriginal Languages.

While the American aborigines, particularly in the Southwest, have shown aptitude for some of the handicrafts, notably that of the potter and of the weaver, they are not often considered expert in the art of speech, and ordinarily we think of their dialects as rude, impoverished jargons in which a tale is told indifferently, unmindful that the best literature of all nations was produced at the period in their development where barbarism, as we visualize it, left off and culture began In fact, we have come to think of their silence as proverbial. They do not trot out their ideas volubly as we do, but this is not through lack of a vehicle for the purpose; on the contrary, many of the tribes—the Micmacs for one—have a noticeably varied means of expression.

Knows Boss' Auto.

When an automobile insurance agent wishes to obtain information about some business men's automobiles it is not always necessary to speak to the owner in person, as in many cases his stenographer is able to supply a startling amount of information about the machine, according to the agent for one of the companies. "Why, just the other day I called up a man to find out if he had a lock on his machine," said the agent. "I was very much surprised to find out that the stenographer could give me all the details that I wanted to know. But when she finished she gave herself away by saying that her employer was the most wonderful driver in the world."

Wit and Humor.

Humor is the describing the ludicrous as it is in itself; wit is the exposing it, by comparing or contrasting it with something else. Humor is, as it were, the growth of nature and accident; wit is the product of art and fancy. Humor, as it is shown in books, is an imitation of the natural or acquired absurdities of mankind, or of the ludicrous in accident, situation and character; wit is the illustrating and heightening the sense of that absurdity by some sudden and unexpected likeness or opposition of one thing to another, which sets off the quality we laugh at or despise in a still more contemptible or striking point of view. —William Hazlitt.

Man's Friend, the Dog.

While the dog has ever been regarded by the Jews as an abomination, he has won his way into the affection of a great multitude of human beings because of the qualities he has demonstrated. In the museum at Berne is the stuffed skin of Barry, the famous mastiff who saved 40 lives —among them that of a little boy whose mother was destroyed by an avalanche. The ancient Crusaders made the dog a symbol of affection and fidelity. The Koran mentions a dog admitted to Paradise by Mahomet, because he was believed to have stood guard over the Seven Sleepers without moving, eating, drinking or sleeping for 200 years.

Wesley "Improved the Minutes."

John Wesley indulged in the dangerous habit of reading on horseback for many years without suffering mishap. "History, poetry and philosophy," he says in his journal. "I commonly read on horseback, having other employment at other times. . . . I asked myself, 'How is it no horse stumbles when I am reading?' No account can possibly be given but this: 'Because I throw the reins on his back.' I then set myself to observe; and I aver that in riding about one hundred thousand miles I scarce remember any horse (except two that would fall head over heels anyway) to fall or to make a considerable stumble while I rode with a slack rein."

Before Books Were Plentiful.

The almanac and the family Bible constituted the home library some two hundred years ago. The weather predictions in the almanacs of 160 years ago were occasionally right, and when so proved in any locality, the fame of the predicter was proclaimed abroad at the corner groceries and tavern bars of the land.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 13, 1921.

NOT WEARY IN WELL-DOING.

Compared with its predecessors, the recent Chamber of Commerce membership campaign was dead. It was without the music of brass bands or trumpet calls and had only about one-quarter of the usual number of solicitors. The success of a campaign is judged by results. The "dead" campaign of 1921 closed with almost as many members as last year and more than in any elaborate and noisy campaign before that of 1920.

Why should there be any membership campaign for the Chamber of Commerce? Either the Chamber of Commerce is worth while supporting or it is not. The energy expended on a membership "drive" necessarily must be taken away from something else. The energy might better be applied to the work for which the Chamber is designed, but that work must stand still during a campaign or drive.

There is a chance now for easy and simple evolution to the Rochester method which was outlined by one of the speakers last year. Rochester has no campaign but results are accomplished by steady effort all the year on the part of small committees and a paid collector whose services do not cost as much as the expense of a regular campaign.

The reasonableness of the Rochester method is apparent. The Chamber of Commerce is a continuing body. Its work can be compared to the continuing work of a newspaper. The Freeman, for instance, does not require that subscriptions shall all begin and end at a certain date. If it did, there would be a vast amount of work during its annual campaign and naturally some subscribers would be found to be out of town. Instead, subscriptions are accepted at all times of the year and consequently they expire at all times. Renewal of subscriptions as they expire is just as much a part of the continuing work of the subscribers as it is of The Freeman office.

The Freeman "delivers the goods" to its subscribers in a continuing, year round fashion, just as the Chamber of Commerce is continuing through the entire year to deliver the goods for which it is organized, both to members and to the city at large. For this continuing work the Chamber of Commerce deserves support. It is worth all it costs, and that fact is apparent at all times. Therefore, the Chamber is deserving of support at all times.

Spasmodic campaigns do not accomplish as much as steady effort. The growth which is continuing and steady is preferable to the shout and tumult of an annual drive or campaign. The last campaign proved that tumult and noise are not necessary to secure support for the Chamber. The same effort, spread over the entire year, unconsciously will result in added individual effort for which there is no time during the rush of a campaign, with a continuing interest and support which is not so apt to display itself under the once-a-year campaign method. Since the Chamber is good for the city, why not let its continuing support begin now?

BRITAIN'S DAUGHTERS.

On reading the reports of the proceedings in the Imperial Conference at London, one wonders how the mother country is to retain her past authority and general supervision if she meets the demands of her full grown and powerful daughters. The premiers of South Africa, Australia and Canada seem to have assumed the attitude of the equals of Great Britain, the relation suggesting not that of mother and daughters but of an elder and younger sisters, the latter now having attained the full rights of grown-ups. The Canadian premier, for example, demands that the dominions must be kept completely and constantly informed upon questions of foreign policy; that upon all these questions the dominion governments must be consulted; that no treaty alliances must be made without the advice and approval of the dominion parliaments; and, finally, that upon all questions arising between the United States and Canada the advice of the government of the latter must be accepted as final.

The involuntary sympathy of every American will go out to this attitude on the part of Canada, but at the same time it will be recognized by the well informed that our disputes with our northern neighbor might be less readily adjusted under this arrangement. As is natural enough, there is more "feeling" against the United States in near-by Canada than in far-off England, and among our neighbors to the north there has long been complaint of a greater desire on the part of the British government to please the United States than to satisfy Canada. The change demanded may add to our government's diplomatic difficulties as well as reduce Great Britain to a mere equal among her self-reliant daughters. But the change or at least a considerable modification of the old conditions, would appear to be inevitable.

In spite of Mayor Canfield's statement that the new Kingston gag-law "has no application to any indoor meetings or assemblages," there are many people who disagree with him especially in view of the plain language of the ordinance that no person shall make or deliver a speech or address "in any public place or in any public gathering or assemblage within the city, without a written permit from the mayor." Such people believe that both the city hall and the court house come under the definition of "a public place." Therefore, how will it be possible for anybody to make a speech of protest against the gag-law at the next meeting of the common council "without a written permit from the mayor?" And when Judge Fowler convenes county court in September, or Judge Hasbrouck convenes the Supreme court in October, will it not be necessary for lawyers to obtain "a written permit from the mayor" before they make their speeches before the jury? The law is no respecter or persons; lawyers and judges should be the last persons in the world to disobey or disregard it.

Under the terms of Kingston's gag-law, the man or woman who makes a patriotic speech for Memorial Day exercises or a Fourth of July celebration at the city hall or any of the city cemeteries, "without a written permit from the mayor" is just as big a criminal as the "Red" who mounts a soap-box at the street corner and advises that the government of the United States or any particular state or municipality be overthrown "by the use of violence, force, or other unlawful methods." The ordinance says that each violation of any of the provisions of the ordinance is declared to be a misdemeanor. The United States government does not attempt to regulate or control the man who wants to unbosom himself of patriotic thoughts. But the United States has been able to deport a large number of anarchists. Could Kingston do as much?

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Why should cut flowers be wrapped and kept from air in transportation?
2. Why does a rattle snake rattle at all?
3. Why do owls see by night instead of by day.

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Please tell if possible for what reason Nature gives the moose the flap of skin on his neck commonly called a bell?

It is impossible to answer the "why" as to ornaments given the creatures. The "bell" is really a dewlap, something akin to the hanging folds on the under neck of the ox tribe, or even the wattles on certain male birds. In old moose the bell often shrinks and is hardly noticeable.

2. Can the wild rabbit be domesticated?

It has been domesticated, in the breeds now so well established, as they are descended from wild ones. But they have been greatly modified by artificial selection. As rabbits are not expensive, and as the domesticated varieties have been bred for flesh or for fur, we see no advantage in trying to domesticate a wild one, unless a pet is desired in some individual case.

3. If a female bird is killed after young are hatched, will the widower bring a new mother to the nest?

The point of a bird that has lost its mate, seeking a new one, seems to be more related to the widowed party's need of a new partner for a second brood than a question of getting a step-parent for the young. In case the mate is lost before eggs are laid, or even after they are layed-but-not-hatched, a new mate may be called, but is not likely to be sought after the eggs are hatched.

SHAWL AND SCARF

Spanish Shoulder Decoration Bids for Popularity.

Summer Girl of 1921 May Find Apparel Useful and Distinctively Ornamental.

Off and on there have been rumors to the effect that shawls were lurking just around the corner ready to be introduced in high society. So they were—the gorgeous Spanish shawl variety, heavy with blazing colored silk embroidery, usually in floral design although their use was naturally restricted to what was once known as candle light.

Women have worn these shawls to operas and theaters the past winter, but as last year they wore resplendent Oriental wraps, but it can hardly be truthfully stated that shawls are in vogue. They have their little part to play, but that is all.

One might easily imagine that the summer girl of 1921 might find such a shawl useful and distinctively ornamental. One knows, of course, that she will wear it again—attached usually to the shoulder of a frock. It seems so logical to dip a cape into a point at the back, for tunic and hem lines have a way of hiking up in the front and pointing at either side, or in the center of the back.

SATIN FOR WEDDING GOWNS

Ivory Material With Soft Laces Favorite—Bride Is Duty-Bound to Look Beautiful.

If there is one day of your life on which you deserve to be the center of the stage, it is on your wedding day. And for your wedding which you have announced, you must be now prepared. Not only will you plan your wedding gown yourself but you will plan the gown of every maid and flower girl so there will be no disturbing note.

It is your duty, your moral obligation, to be beautiful on this one day of days.

For the gown itself nothing rivals ivory satin and soft laces of a thousand memories. Though the ways in which it can be fashioned are legion, some of the ultra-smart brides are affecting the mode which goes without sleeves altogether. Their skirts are short and the lace drapings hang in points below the hem.

There is something classic about the ivory brocaded velvet which some brides are selecting and having fashioned in the straightest and plainest lines.

The neck is most often cut quite low, in that round, girlish effect.

Veils are being variously worn, but the preference seems to be for the simple arrangement. A lovely effect is achieved by a band of pearls which circles the head and holds the misty folds of tulle beneath, forgetting entirely any ruchings or "stand up" effects.

Even Knitted Capes.

Then there are knitted capes to be seen on the street in New York almost every day. They are in quiet grays and tans and taupes usually, although some brighter ones have made their appearance, and with very good effect. Some of these knitted capes are long to cover up the whole of the frock, and again others of them are short enough to extend just below the waistline. With the shorter one it is quite the smart thing to wear a dress made of the same knitted material, and that, one must be on the severest lines in order to exhibit its part to the best advantage.

Skirts for Summer.

While silk and cotton probably will remain the favorite materials for skirts for summer wear, there is said to be a notable increase in interest in linen skirtings. Some fashion experts are inclined to attribute this to a vogue for sports style, or manish dress.

Cinderella Up and Down.

The subject being Cinderella, and the girl, an interpreter Carolyn Wells, she says that if her life did not "live happily ever after" in a long, normal way, it ended in a hysterical climax."—Boston Transcript.

Concord.

Plain as our landscape is, it has special attractions for the scholar who counts quiet surroundings scenery not less exalting, yet stimulating to genial and uninterrupted study. If the hills commend no very broad horizon, the prospect is sufficiently given to give an agreeable variety without confusing the mind, while the river is good part one just calm for the sameness as it winds sluggishly along the confines of the village, flowing by the monument into the distance through the meadows. Thoreau, writing of it, fondly says: "It is remarkable for the gentleness of its current, which is hardly perceptible, and some have ascribed to its influence the proverbial moderation of the inhabitants of Concord, as celebrated as the Revolution and all other occasions. It has been proposed that the town should adopt for its coat of arms a field vert, a plant, with the Concord river running nine times round it."—"Table Talk." A. Bronson Alcott.

Tortoises Dance.

Tortoise dances by fanatics on the edge of the Sahara desert were described by Waterman Field, a Chicago merchant, who arrived in New York recently. Relating what he saw on a tour of Africa, Field said: "Another motor trip took us to the town of Kairouan, about 100 miles south of Tunis. We arrived there in the midst of the greatest religious festival of the year being celebrated by the Aissouas, an Arab tribe. One feature of the fiesta was piercing the cheeks of the dancers with long steel rods, and then threading the rods through the skin of the parts of their bodies. The performers with which they prayed, we were told, was responsible for the failure of blood to flow. Other dancers ate scorpions and crushed glass. If they suffered any pain we could not trace it."

Aboriginal Languages.

While the white man aborigines particularly in the Southwest, have chosen symbols for some of the handicrafts notably that of the potter and of the weaver, they are not often considered signs in the art of speech, and ordinarily we think of their dialects as rude, impoverished jargons in which a sale is sold indifferently, remarkable that the best literature of all nations was produced at the period in their development when reflection, as we discuss it, left all and culture began

In fact, we have come to think of their silence as proverbial. They do not trot out their ideas volubly as we do, but this is not through lack of a vehicle for the purpose on the contrary, many of the tribes—the Micmacs for one—have a noticeably varied means of expression.

Knows Best Auto.

When an automobile insurance agent called on to obtain information about some Los Angeles people's automobiles it is not always an easy to speak to the owners of speech as to many cases the unscrupulous refuse to supply a sufficient amount of information about the machine, according to the agent for one of the companies. "Why, just the other day I called a man to find out if he had a [illegible] machine," said the agent. "I was very much surprised to find that the engineer could give me all the details of it and pointed to [illegible] Jones, who had helped the gang beyond argue to explain that her employer was the most wonderful driver in the world."

Wit and Humor.

Humor is the describing the ludicrous as it is at itself. Wit is the exposing it, by comparing or contrasting it with something else. Humor is, as it were, the growth of nature and accident; wit is the product of art and fancy. Humor, as it is shown in books, is an imitation of the natural or acquired absurdities of mankind, or of the ludicrous in accident, situation and character; wit is the illustrating and heightening the sense of that absurdity by some sudden and unexpected allusion or opposition of one thing to another, which sets off the quality we laugh at or despise in a still more contemptible or striking point of view. —William Hazlitt.

Man's Friend, the Dog.

While the dog has ever been regarded by the Jews as an abomination he has won his way into the affections of a great multitude of human beings because of the qualities he has demonstrated. In the museum at Berne is the stuffed skin of Nero, the famous mastiff who saved 40 lives—among them that of a little boy whose mother was destroyed by an avalanche. The ancient Cynosure made the dog a symbol of affection and fidelity. The Koran mentions a dog admitted to Paradise by Mahomet, because he was believed to have stood guard over the Seven Sleepers without moving, eating, drinking or sleeping for 200 years.

Wesley "Improved the Minutes."

John Wesley indulged in the dangerous habit of reading on horseback for many years without suffering mishap. "History, poetry and philosophy," he says in his journal "I commonly read on horseback, having other employment at other times. . . . I advise myself 'Here is a fine house [illegible] when I am reading.' No argument can persuade the [illegible] but this: 'Because I throw the reins on his neck I lose my mind to observe; and I save that in riding about one hundred thousand miles I never remember any horse (except two that would fall head over heels) appear to fall or to make a more sensible stumble while I rode with a slack rein."

Before Books Were Plentiful.

The almanac and the family Bible constituted the home library some two hundred years ago. The weather predictions in the almanacs of 100 years ago were occasionally right, and when so proved to any locality, the fame of the prediction was proclaimed abroad at the corner groceries and taverns of the land.

CITY MILK IS UP TO STANDARD

Report of June Milk Examinations Shows That All But One Dealer Met the City Milk Standard.

That the city milk dealers are striving to meet with the city milk standard is shown by the report of Miss B. Eleanor Easton of the city laboratory of the milk tests during the month of June. The report shows that all but one dealer, the Kingston City Dairy, met the required standard. The report in full follows:

AGRIGRAPHS.

Are you selecting your poultry and stock for exhibit at the fair?

Are you selling as much stuff as you might to the summer resort folks near your farm?

Uncle Ab says: The man who puts the big fruit on top generally comes out at the small end.

Broad, smooth, firm collars will prevent nine-tenth of the sore shoulder troubles on work horses.

You can't do good work if the flies heckle you constantly. Neither can the livestock. Protect them.

Roadside markets have helped more than one farm family, living on a much-traveled state highway, to add a neat little sum to its bank account.

Green forage crops and some grain in addition to the waste products are necessary if you make the kind of pork for which there is a demand.

Just because he has finished high school is no reason why the farm boy's education should stop. The state college at Ithaca offers five agricultural correspondence courses free to residents of the state. A postal will bring particulars.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, July 12.—Mrs. J. Elvy and brother, E. Neal, enjoyed a trip to Scranton, Pa., and visited relatives there. They went by way of Oneonta and visited other points of interest which made the trip a very interesting and pleasant one all around.

Katharine Lemming was taken very ill early Sunday morning but is now better and we hope she will soon be well again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemming nicely entertained with music and games a party of friends Friday evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Short, Mr. and Mrs. H. Short and sister, E. Short, Miss Gertrude Short and Messrs Kenneth and Loyd Warren. All enjoyed the evening very much. Very nice refreshments were served.

We are sorry to learn Mrs. Lester Bell Sr., is ill. We trust she will soon be well again.

Loren Bell enjoyed the Fourth at Kingston. He spent a few days there visiting relatives and friends.

S. Pinover and daughter, Hattie, Mr. and Mrs. Zohling and daughter, Beatrice of New York city, stopped over to visit their friend, Mrs. Loomis, while passing through here on their way up the line, where Mr. Lohling's son is in camp.

Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Nellie Baldwin, who spent the winter away have returned to their home here for the summer.

The Rev. McLaren, who is sick, has been given three weeks' vacation. He and and Mrs. McLaren have joined their sons and daughter at "camp" over the Connecticut line.

Miss Anna Simpson who attended Spencer's last year has a nice position during the summer in the district attorney's office.

Miss Marion Winne who spent some time in the city has returned home.

Mrs. H. Clancy had a bad fall Friday night, July 1. It was dark and rainy and she made a misstep. She struck her head on a railroad tie and was stunned for a while but managed to get home. Dr. Gross attended her. We are glad she has fully recovered.

Many out of town people were in the place over the Fourth.

Hazen to Have a Modern Store.

Max Hazen recently bought the Kennedy block on lower Broadway, as stated in The Freeman at the time, and expects to occupy one of the stores on the ground floor as a modern shoe store. He is having alterations made to the interior of the store adjoining Block's dry goods store in the same building and when alterations are completed will have one of the most modern shoe stores in the city. He will continue in business at his present location at No. 19 Broadway, until the new store is ready when he will take possession. The Kennedy block since Mr. Hazen bought it has been repainted and named, "The Max Hazen Block."

COUNTY COURT, ULSTER COUNTY.

VINA W. WESTBROOK as administratrix with the will annexed of the goods, chattels and credits which were of Maria C. Westbrook, deceased, Plaintiff, against ISAAC G. DAVIS and MARGARET DAVIS, his wife; CALVIN OSTERHOUDT and MARTHA OSTERHOUDT, his wife, and THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made in the above entitled action on the 8th day of June, 1921, and entered in the Ulster County Clerk's Office June 11, 1921, I, the undersigned the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Kingston on the 4th day of August, 1921, at 12:00 o'clock noon, the premises directed in and by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about half a mile northerly from the village of Kripplebush, being the southwest portion of the farm formerly owned by Cornelius D. De Lamamte, deceased, and is bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING on the southeast bounds of the other land of Hannah Davis, widow of said John H. Davis, deceased, and runs from thence south 44° east 2 chains, then south 16° west 2 chains and 15 links as the stone wall now stands, thence as the wall now stands south 48° west 1 chain and 50 links, then as the wall stands, south 21° west 6 chains and 10 links to the bounds of land of Hannah M. Rosenkranse, then along her bounds north 63° west 7 chains and 50 links to the west side of a small brook, then south 66° and 30" west 1 chain and 50 links to cedar tree on the Davis Wager road, then along said road north 12° west 3 chains and 10 links or to the bounds of land formerly belonging to the heirs of Paul Wager, deceased, then along the same north 53° east 4 chains and 30 links to the bounds of Hannah Davis aforesaid, then along her bounds south 65° east 5 chains, then along the same north 53° east 5 chains and 67 links to the place of beginning. Containing 5 acres and 6-10 of an acre of land more or less. Reserving to James H. Smith his heirs and assigns, the right and privilege of riding and crossing over the land herein described as the road now runs from the residence occupied by said Smith in a westerly direction and intersects the said Wager road on the west side of the said small Brook, said road to be one rod wide.

ALSO ALL THAT CERTAIN PIECE OR PARCEL OF LAND situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about half a mile northerly from the village of Kripplebush, being bounded as follows, viz: BEGINNING in the corner of the center of the stone wall on the westerly side of the road that leads from the public road near the house owned by the heirs of Paul Wager to the house of the party of the first part, from thence running as the fence now stands north 34° and 30 minutes west 4 chains 18 links to the center of the wall at the bounds of the heirs of Paul Wager, thence along said bounds south 52° west 8 chains and 66 links to a stake in the grounds, thence south 66° and 10" east 3 chains and 80 links, then south 80° and 15 minutes east 1 chain and 22 links, then north 50° and 45" east 5 chains and 78 links to the place of beginning. Containing 3 acres and 4-10th of an acre of land. With the privilege of a free road and outway from the said described lot to the Public Highway to come on said road from said lot about a chain from the line of the heirs of Paul Wager and running southwesterly to said public road near the house now owned and occupied by the heirs of Paul Wager where the said road is used by the party of the first part, but the party of the second part is bound to assist and help keep said road in repair to be used by the party of the second part, and James H. Smith or his assigns, and as more particularly excepted and reserved in a deed from Hannah Davis to Isaac G. Davis, dated April 13, 1899, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book 350 of Deeds, page 169, on the 15th day of April, 1899.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about three-quarters of a mile northeasterly from the village of Kripplebush and is bounded and described as follows, to-wit: BEGINNING at stones laid together in the north corner of a farm now belonging to the heirs of Jacob Eckert, deceased, from thence running along the same south 28" 45 minutes east 27 chains to stones in a run of water called the Tare Kuyle Kill, the bounds of land belonging to Ten Eyck D. W. Veeder, then along his land north 23 ° 15 minutes east 5 chains 50 links to a heap of stones marked "T. L." formerly a corner tree, then continuing said course 3 chains 50 links to a heap of stones in the bounds of land belonging to James H. Van Demark then along the same north 24° 30 minutes east 10 chains to a chestnut tree marked, and north 26° 45" west 12 chains 32 links to a stone set in the ground the bounds of land late of Solomon Freer, then along the same north 46° west 8 chains 90 links to a heap of stones and north 19° 15 minutes east 1 chain and 50 links to stones, then south 61° 45 minutes west 29 chains to a large rock oak tree marked in the bounds of land belonging to John W. Wager, then along his land south 49° west to stones in the bounds of land belonging to Hannah Rosenkranse, then along her land south 67° 30" east to the place of beginning. Containing 80 acres of land, and being the same premises which were conveyed by Henry Van Demark and Elizabeth Van Demark, his wife, to Isaac I. Hasbrouck by a deed dated February 17, 1835, and conveyed by Gross Hasbrouck and Sarah Ann Hasbrouck, his wife, and Mary Ann Hasbrouck and Rachel Chambers, to Cornelius D. De Lamater, by a deed dated May 1, 1847, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book of Deeds No. 76, pages 12 and 13, on March 31st, 1848, at 11:30 o'clock A. M.

ALSO ALL THAT CERTAIN PIECE OF LAND, situated in Kripplebush, on both sides of a stream of water called the Tare Kuyle Kill and is bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING at a heap of stones laid together by the side of a stone wall and in the south angle of a wood lot belonging to Ten Eyck S. W. and Harry Veeder, and on the bounds of Cornelius D. De Lamater from thence running along said De Lamater's former bounds north 64° east 18 chains 92 links to a stake in a large stone row on the bounds of the said Cornelius L. Hasbrouck, thence along the same north 4° west 3 chains 68 links and north 14° 45 minutes west 7 chains 44 links and north 31° west 3 chains 28 links to a stake on the bounds of the said Veeder's wood lot, thence along the same south 21° 12" west 19 chains 80 links to the place of beginning. KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 13, 1921.

NOT WEARY IN WELL-DOING.

Compared with its predecessors, the recent Chamber of Commerce membership campaign was dead. It was without the music of brass bands or trumpet calls and had only about one-quarter of the usual number of solicitors. The success of a campaign is judged by results. The "dead" campaign of 1921 closed with almost as many members as last year and more than in any elaborate and noisy campaign before that of 1920.

Why should there be any membership campaign for the Chamber of Commerce? Either the Chamber of Commerce is worth while supporting or it is not. The energy expended on a membership "drive" necessarily must be taken away from something else. The energy might better be applied to the work for which the Chamber is designed, but that work must stand still during a campaign or drive.

There is a chance now for easy and simple evolution to the Rochester method which was outlined by one of the speakers last year. Rochester has no campaign but results are accomplished by steady effort all the year on the part of small committees and a paid collector whose services do not cost as much as the expense of a regular campaign.

The reasonableness of the Rochester method is apparent. The Chamber of Commerce is a continuing body. Its work can be compared to the continuing work of a newspaper. The Freeman, for instance, does not require that subscriptions shall all begin and end at a certain date. If it did, there would be a vast amount of work during its annual campaign and naturally some subscribers would be found to be out of town. Instead, subscriptions are accepted at all times of the year and consequently they expire at all times. Renewal of subscriptions as they expire is just as much a part of the continuing work of the subscribers as it is of The Freeman office.

The Freeman "delivers the goods" to its subscribers in a continuing, year round fashion, just as the Chamber of Commerce is continuing through the entire year to deliver the goods for which it is organized, both to members and to the city at large. For this continuing work the Chamber of Commerce deserves support. It is worth all it costs, and that fact is apparent at all times. Therefore, the Chamber is deserving of support at all times.

Spasmodic campaigns do not accomplish as much as steady effort. The growth which is continuing and steady is preferable to the shout and tumult of an annual drive or campaign. The last campaign proved that tumult and noise are not necessary to secure support for the Chamber. The same effort, spread over the entire year, unconsciously will result in added individual effort for which there is no time during the rush of a campaign, with a continuing interest and support which is not so apt to display itself under the once-a-year campaign method. Since the Chamber is good for the city, why not let its continuing support begin now?

BRITAIN'S DAUGHTERS.

On reading the reports of the proceedings in the Imperial Conference at London, one wonders how the mother country is to retain her past authority and general supervision if she meets the demands of her full grown and powerful daughters. The premiers of South Africa, Australia and Canada seem to have assumed the attitude of the equals of Great Britain, the relation resembling not that of mother and daughters but of an elder and younger sisters the latter now having attained the full rights of grown-up. The Canadian premier, for example, demands that the dominions must be kept completely and constantly informed upon questions of foreign policy, that upon all these questions the dominion governments must be consulted, that no treaty alliance must be made without the advice and approval of the dominion parliaments, and finally that upon all questions arising between the United States and Canada the advice of the government of the latter must be accepted as final.

The inexpressible sympathy of every American will go out to this attitude on the part of Canada, but at the same time it will be recognized by the well informed that our disputes with our northern neighbor might be less readily adjusted under this arrangement. As is natural enough, there is more "feeling" against the United States in near-by Canada than in far-off England, and among our neighbors to the north there has long been complaint of a greater desire on the part of the British government to please the United States than to satisfy Canada. The change demanded may add to our government's diplomatic difficulties as well as reduce Great Britain to a more equal among her self reliant daughters. But the change or at least a considerable modification of the old conditions, would appear to be inevitable.

In spite of Mayor Canfield's statement that the new Kingston gag-law "has no application to any indoor meetings or assemblages," there are many people who disagree with it especially in view of the plain language of the ordinance that no person shall make or deliver a speech or address "in any public place or any public gathering or assemblage within the city, without a written permit from the mayor." Such people believe that both the city hall and the court house come under the definition of "a public place." Therefore, how will it be possible for anybody to make a speech of protest against the gag-law at the next meeting of the common council "without a written permit from the mayor"? And when Judge Fowler convenes county court in September, or Judge Hasbrouck convenes the Supreme court in October, will it not be necessary for lawyers to obtain "a written permit from the mayor" before they make their speeches before the jury? The law is no respecter or persons, lawyers and judges should be the last persons in the world to disobey or disregard it.

Under the terms of Kingston's gag-law, the man or woman who makes a patriotic speech for Memorial Day exercises or a Fourth of July celebration at the city hall or any of the city cemeteries, "without a written permit from the mayor" is just as big a criminal as the "Red" who mounts a soap-box at the street corner and advises that the government of the United States or any particular state or municipality be overthrown "by the use of violence, force, or other unlawful methods." The ordinance says that each violation of any of the provisions of the ordinance is declared to be a misdemeanor. The United States government does not attempt to regulate or control the man who wants to unbosom himself of patriotic thoughts. But the United States has been able to deport a large number of anarchists. Could Kingston do as much?

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Why should cut flowers be wrapped and kept from air in transportation?

2. Why does a rattle snake rattle at all?

3. Why do owls see by night instead of by day.

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Please tell if possible for what reason Nature gives the moose the flap of skin on his neck commonly called a bell?

It is impossible to answer the "why" as to ornaments given the creatures. The "bell" is really a dewlap, something akin to the hanging folds on the under neck of the ox tribe, or even the wattles on certain male birds. In old moose the bell often shrinks and is hardly noticeable.

2. Can the wild rabbit be domesticated?

It has been domesticated, in the breeds now so well established, as they are descended from wild ones. But they have been greatly modified by artificial selection. As rabbits are not expensive, and as the domesticated varieties have been bred for flesh or for fur, we see no advantage in trying to domesticate a wild one unless a pet is desired in some individual case.

3. If a female bird is killed after young are hatched, will the widower bring a new mother to the nest?

The point of a bird that has lost its mate, seeking a new one seems to be more related to the widower's need of a new partner for a second brood than a question of getting a step-parent for the young. In case the mate is lost before eggs are laid or even after they are laid-but-not-hatched, a new mate has been called but is not likely to be sought after the eggs are hatched.

THE MOST EQUITABLE FORM OF RATE

In Gloversville, N. Y., the Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of the consumers, appointed a special committee consisting of five members to investigate and report on the Service Charge of 50c per month introduced by the local company. It was put up to this committee to determine whether the service charge or a minimum charge would be more equitable.

Their report reads:

"After an analysis of the figures of the company we can see no grounds to recommend opposition to the proposed manner of increasing consumer gas costs and after careful study believe the proposed Service Charge to be more equitable to all consumers than either a minimum rate or an increased rate to $1.80 per 1,000 cubic feet. Under the proposed service charge your committee believes that every consumer of gas pays his equalized costs of the service and neither the small consumer nor the large consumer is compelled to carry a load that should be shared by both."

This conclusion is of importance! It means, as applied to Kingston, the company can maintain lower rates for gas with the service charge than without. This is of great advantage to the City as was pointed out by the action taken by the Merchants' Association of New York City an account of which was recently published by us.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the "Service Charge" is now in use in at least forty states in the Union and has been passed on by most of the Utility Commissions as the best form of rate.

THE PROUD TRUNK.

"I feel sorry," said the trunk, "for other trunks which have not traveled."

"I've never traveled very much," said the suitcase near by.

"I've been once to the seashore," the suitcase continued, "and when the trip was over with I had a goodly smell of the ocean for sometime after. Quite damp bathing suits were put inside me."

"Have you never been anywhere else but to the seashore?" asked the trunk.

"Oh, yes," said the suitcase. "I've been to the country, too. I went filled with all sorts of interesting things. There were stockings with holes which were taken in me, and lots of other things of that sort which needed mending.

"And then I came back with different things in me."

"Indeed," said the trunk, "and what, pray tell, did you carry coming home?"

"I came home filled with apples and potatoes and I can tell you I had quite an exciting trip home. You see my owner, who is quite a grown-up person, had been to visit her mother and that was why the stockings were in the suitcase, or in me, as you care to say it."

"I don't care to say it," said the trunk.

"Very well," said the suitcase, "no harm done, I'm sure. But you see, we went by train, and coming home we were invited to ride in a motor car owned by some very fine and very rich people. Oh, it was a very smart car, and I was strapped on behind along with beautiful leather suitcases and all covered over with a leather cover.

"Never," said the suitcase, "in all my suitcase life had I traveled in such style.

"I knew my owner would feel quite badly if I should come apart, and so I had a very exciting time trying to keep together and making believe to those very smart and rich people that beautiful dresses were in me instead of apples and potatoes.

"My owner loves to carry things home like that after she has visited her mother. Gracious me, there isn't anything she won't take in me! Food, food, food! How much food I've carried.

"Of course I'm of straw, as you can see, and I'm not very strong now. I've been on a good many journeys, though I've been mostly back and forth between one or two places. That is why I cannot say I have traveled far.

"I have been to the country very often."

"Doesn't your owner ever darn her stockings?" asked the trunk.

"Not for sometime when she is going soon to visit her mother. She saves them as her mother is so good and willing about darning stockings.

"Not Very Strong."

My owner, I fear, doesn't like to darn them. She isn't lazy, though, Trunk, so don't get that idea in your trays. I would say 'head,' but of course 'trays' is a more suitable word."

"Ah," said the trunk, "I feel sorry for you, suitcase, but I feel even sorrier for other trunks which haven't traveled. I've seen trunks which had barely a label on them.

"Now a label is a card or a ticket of some sort which has an address on it, or the name of a hotel where one has stopped.

"Dear me, I've labels all over the world. I've been to Greece and Italy, and Egypt and Spain, and Norway and Sweden, and England and Scotland, and Wales and many other countries.

"I've traveled by sea, and I've traveled by land. I probably will travel by airship one of these days when the people who own me get an airship. They may, you know. They're so fond of traveling that I don't see any reason why they should leave the clouds and the high air out of their travels.

"Ah yes, I am a traveled trunk. I don't know any more because I've traveled so much, but at least when trunks are being bounced about I can let the other trunks know that though I am being thrown about a bit, I've been to a long list of places, and will name them over, too.

"That will be impressive and fine!"

GOOD THINGS FOR LUNCHEON.

Now that the fresh mushroom is ready for the gathering let us have:

Cream of Mushroom Soup. — Chop fine one pound of fresh mushrooms, and put into a double boiler with one pint of milk. Cook one-half hour, and strain. Add one pint of thin cream; when it comes to a boil, season with pepper and salt, add one-fourth of a cupful of butter and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour stirred with a little cold milk. When serving, add a spoonful of whipped cream for each cup.

Smothered Chicken. — Cut up the chicken as for frying. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a frying pan. Dredge the chicken with flour and pepper and put into the hot frying pan and cook several minutes adding bits of butter, as needed. Add boiling water to not quite cover the chicken and let simmer one to four hours according to the age of the chicken; cover tightly. A half-hour before serving season with salt. A small piece of onion improves the flavor; it should be cooked with the chicken.

Creamed Calf's Brains.—Cover the brains with cold water and let soak over night. In the morning drain off all the water and cover with boiling water; cook for one-half hour. Drain off the water, separate the brains and skin them. Blend one tablespoonful of butter with an equal amount of flour and add a little milk. Stir and cook until smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chop the brains and add them to the sauce. Cook for three or four minutes and serve immediately.

Carrots, fresh and crisp, ground through the fine knife of a meat grinder, added to salad dressing and served on lettuce, make a most wholesome salad rich in mineral salts.

Chopped Bermuda onions, dressed with French dressing and used for a sandwich are most appetizing.

Hot's Mammoth sage is the most highly prized as it grows very large leaves with the leaf stalks up from the soil, keeping them clean. The leaves are of fine flavor and much used in pork or pork sausage.

ARMAMENT RACE FATAL MISTAKE

Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 13.—Commander Viscount Curzon, M. P., eminent authority on international politics, in an interview granted the International News Service discussed the recent pronouncements of Lloyd-George and General Jan Smuts that a rapprochement should be entered into with the United States on armaments.

General Smuts stated at the Imperial Conference, following Lloyd-George's overtures to America, that it was his belief that the most fatal mistake of all would be a race in armaments with America. Commander Viscount Curzon in his interview discussed recent limitation suggestions and takes the view that the formula for a naval agreement should be a financial one, in opposition, presumably, to the admiralty view, which is that it should be expressed in "big ships." Lord Curzon said:

"Although we have been discussing this question of a naval holiday for so long, the clear fact remains that up to now there has been nothing but talk. Whether international agreement is to be arrived at still remains to be seen for the lead that we gave long ago has not been followed.

"Japan, it is true, is credited with views similar to our own, but America is silent, and we can only speculate as to the eventual outcome of it all.

"No good can come from recrimination. I regard it as absolutely all-important in this matter that we should not be tempted, however strongly we may feel, into any criticism of whatever action America feels justified in adopting.

"It must be remembered that America is perfectly entitled to take any action she likes. We have no right to cavil at her decision, even if it should not agree with what we may regard as the best. If we were in her position we should resent interference.

"It is obvious that there are some Americans who want their country to possess the biggest navy in the world, and to a nation that prides itself on going ahead the ambition is understandable. They say they can afford to gratify their desire, and they do not see why they should not.

"I am quite certain there is no aggressive intent behind such plans, for America is not aggressive—at any rate, in the sense that Germany was. It is simply an expression by a wealthy nation of its national pride in being able to say with regard to the navy as it does in other activities, that it possesses 'the biggest thing yet.'

"At the same time, such views have to be reconciled with the idea of the League of Nations and similar schemes that had their genesis on the other side of the Atlantic; and I am afraid it is not thoroughly recognized by all Americans that there is a certain danger in owning these enormous fighting machines.

"The temptation on the part of those who create them must be in the end to say: 'Why not use them?' While that possibility is present everyone gets nervous.

"I do not see how we can possibly go any farther than we have done in reducing armaments until encouragement is given by people outside our shores. Our attitude, which was reiterated this week at the opening of the imperial conference by Mr. Lloyd-George, leaves no room for doubt; we should be only too willing to arrive at some agreement which would have the effect of limiting armaments.

"It is largely open to doubt whether we have not already gone too far. In a few years' time we shall have only four ships, or possibly five, embodying the lessons of the battle of Jutland, as against eighteen that America will possess, and that is a serious situation. In addition, we have disposed of an enormous number of destroyers. It is true that they were somewhat obsolete and had been subjected to great wear and tear during the war, but we have no information that similar clearances have been made elsewhere.

"No one, in short, has done so much to reduce naval armaments as we have done, and we certainly cannot afford to take any further risks until some definite agreement has been arrived at between the nations.

"That agreement has not been reached, although no one can seriously contemplate any further resort by civilized nations, in our lifetime at any rate, to the arbitrament of war.

"We must leave no stone unturned in our endeavor to arrive at some sort of agreement on this tremendously important subject, and in my view it is much better not to attempt to tie down too definitely the countries concerned. We shall achieve success more quickly if we allow ample latitude to individual countries.

"As to the form that the limitation should take there can be little doubt that to express it in the numbers of ships that would be permitted is to invite many difficulties, unless we are able to formulate some scheme that is easily worked.

"Even then there would be a necessity for considerable latitude, for the nation authorized to possess certain capital ships might prefer smaller craft in proportions that conceivably could lead to dispute.

"And the country that did not want any at all might be compelled, through the working of the scheme, to embark on enterprises that she did not desire.

"It would probably be found, in the event of definite agreement between the nations, that a more workable plan would be to adopt the suggestion of a limit expressed, not in numbers of vessels, but in money. With proper calculations based on varying rates of exchange, it ought to be possible to arrive at some fixed amount that would not be exceeded by any of the nations concerned.

"As it is an international matter any decisions would rightly be taken primarily by the statesmen, the function of the naval experts being to tender the necessary advice.

"But all these considerations are more or less speculative. What we want is a practical, duly authenticated proposal. We have not got it yet, and until we do we must see that we do nothing further to lower our naval efficiency in the matter of equipment.

"Until there is a more definite response to our offer to limit armaments than there has been up to now, we must hold our hand, for weakness merely invites aggression."

MYSTERY SHIPS INTEREST NAVY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 12.—Naval officers are considering plans for an ocean-wide campaign in search of the "mystery ships" which have been reported within the last week, it was learned today.

Although the navy department has taken no official action in connection with theories that a "pirate" ship is marauding along the Atlantic coast, it was learned that plans are under consideration for a drive upon the sea to exterminate the buccaneers, if it is definitely established that the reported "mystery" ships are pirate vessels.

Secretary Denby stated today that thus far no naval vessel has sighted the strange vessel, which has been reported by commercial mariners, but indicated that the navy department is giving the closest consideration to the reports which have been made by Captain Giles, of the steamship Munalbro, and others, who have sighted the phantom ship.

If a naval search for the alleged pirate ships is decided upon, it is probable that the seas will be swept by combined surface and air forces. Fleet grey destroyers will be sent to comb the seas and aircraft will scout along the coast in the same manner in which they scouted for enemy submarines during the war.

While the navy department, the coast guard service and the bureau of navigation are withholding a sea search, pending receipt of more definite reports on the mysterious vessel, it was learned that positive action is being taken by the department of justice in tracing down the whereabouts of seamen who are suspected of having piratical tendencies.

The haunts of seamen in the ports of the Atlantic seaboard are being combed in the hope that some information may be secured of the outfitting of a pirate craft. American consulates have been asked to forward any information obtainable on any mysterious marine expeditions that may have set forth from foreign ports. A report that Scotland Yard broke up a pirate undertaking several months ago, and that the men who were concerned in this alleged undertaking have since disappeared, is being closely scanned here.

All descriptions of the mystery ship which have thus far been received here have been rather indefinite, officials stated today, and it is hoped that within a short time a detailed description may be secured and the search problem may be worked out on a more concrete basis.

HARDING'S BONUS POLICY TO WIN

Republican Senate Leaders Expect to Have Bill Recommitted, Perhaps Late Today, After Democrats Have Played All Their Cards in Opposition.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13.—President Harding's plea for deferred action on the soldiers' bonus bill will be carried out after a heated debate, Republican leaders of the senate predicted today.

One effect of the president's declaration that enactment of the bill "in the midst of the struggle for readjustment and restoration would greatly imperil the financial stability of the country," will be to line up additional senators in support of his suggestion that the bill be recommitted to the finance committee, it was stated.

A poll taken by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican "whip" before President Harding delivered his message, disclosed 44 Republicans and 7 Democratic senators prepared to vote for recommitment. Their number is expected to be increased, despite opposition to it centered largely on the Democratic side.

Democratic senators continued their criticism of the president's proposal today, it being their apparent intention to hold up Senator Penrose's motion to recommit the bill while they attacked the Republican administration and the Republican majority of the senate.

Republican leaders expressed the hope, however, that they would be able to force a vote on the Penrose motion before the end of today's session.

With Senator Underwood of Alabama, the Democratic minority leader, favoring the Penrose motion, he having previously assailed the bill itself, Democratic senators opposed to it found new leadership in Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES.

Babe Gets Two Circuit Clouts—Giants Get Good Hurling.

The Indians don't overlook many bets. They won their second double header in three days by timely hitting off Bush, Karr, Myers and Thormahlen of the Red Sox.

Babe Ruth is tearing along like an express train. The big bam knocked out his 33rd and 34th homers at St. Louis, thereby helping the Yanks trim the Browns.

The Pirates gleaned seventeen hits off three Philly pitchers—Baumgartner, Sedgewick and Hubbell— while Cooper breezed along to victory.

Alexander the Great was unable to prove his greatness to the Boston Braves who trounced the Cubs with Alexander pitching against Oeschger.

Four hits was the limit allowed the Cardinals by Jess Barnes, the Giant's expensive Boston "bean."

Second Baseman Sargent's triple in the 16th inning broke up the battle between the Tigers and Athletics, ending it with a Tiger victory.

Rube Marquard made three hits and pitched puzzling ball in Brooklyn, scoring a win for the Reds.

Mullen at the Point Sunday.

James Mullen, one of the most popular trombonist along the Hudson valley, will be the soloist with the Citizens' Band Sunday at Kingston Point Park. Jimmy is known throughout the valley as the man who makes the trombone laugh. During the world war he was with the 51st Pioneer Infantry band in France and always kept the boys entertained with his playing and singing. The program for Sunday will be announced later by Director Harry G. Maisenhelder.

Musical Gifts of Boys and Girls.

The higher musical endowments in male children are shown plainly in vocal and piano classes, where it seems invariable that the most expert and brightest students are boys. For every musical girl, there appears to be five boys equally gifted. They have naturally a better idea of harmony and instinctively grasp musical values, which, in the majority of cases, become understood by their feminine rivals only by dint of hard study.—Exchange.

Bonus Decision Delayed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, July 13.—The court of appeals reconvened here this afternoon to hand down decisions including the determination of the constitutionality of the soldier bonus law. The court convened at 2 o'clock. Argument of the validity of the legislative act reapportioning the aldermanic districts in New York city may delay handing down the bonus decision until late today.

Prince of Wales Ailing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 3.—The Prince of Wales was ordered by his physicians today to abandon all public engagements for an indefinite period. The heir to the British throne has been indisposed recently, and although his medical advisors are inclined to minimize his illness, it was nevertheless thought advisable for him to forego his scheduled engagements.

Mohammedans Venerate Sanctuary in Jerusalem.

Traditions of Ages and Profound Mystery Surrounding the Famous Dome of Rock.

The Mohammedan sanctuary in Jerusalem on the Mount of Abraham's and David's sacrifices echoes the splendor of Solomon's temple that once stood in that locality, writes J. F. Scheltma in Asia Magazine. With its latticed screens of ebony, its brocaded curtains, its stained glass and mosaics in their somewhat faded glory, the dome of the rock stands in the solitude of the sacred precinct like one of those places hewn of a single opal or turquoise we read of in oriental fairy tales.

Approaching it, the Moslem pilgrim has to observe a strict ceremonial. As he enters he puts his right foot forward, begging pardon for his sins and invoking God's mercy. Walking round the rock, he must keep it on his right hand, reversing the process followed when making the circuit of the Kaaba at Mecca. Before proceeding to the cave underneath, he must probe his heart and strive for humility of spirit, uttering the prayer of Solomon: "Oh God, forgive those who have sinned and relieve the injured!"

He firmly believes that the rock is supported by a palm tree rooted in one of the fair rivers of paradise, the tree in the shade of which the beautiful, martyred Asia, wife of Pharaoh, and Mirias, the sister of Moses, will slake the thirst of the Faithful on the day of resurrection.

After paying his respects to the dome of the rock, to its "tongue" (a broken column, slanting to the roof of the cave), to the marks of the Angel Gabriel's fingers and to the sword of Ali, Mahomet's valiant son-in-law, he visits the other shrines of the Holy Enclosure. There, in the heart of Jerusalem, are the dome of the ascent, where the prophet was lifted up when starting on his heavenly journey, and the dome of the chain. The chain that used to hang down from its ceiling was supposed to be possessed of miraculous properties. Whenever a judge had to decide in a difficult case between litigants who supported their conflicting claims by contradictory statements, he transferred his tribunal hither and invited them to touch the links of the chain while repeating their assertions. Then the truth came to light, for the chain could easily be seized by the veracious, but eluded the grasp of the iniquitous who tried by falsehood to get the best of his opponent.

One day, however, the oracle was baffled by a man accused of having borrowed money without paying it back. Now, he kept this money concealed in a hollow staff which he asked the plaintiff to hold for him while he, too, gripped the chain swearing that the sum he owed had been returned. The bystanders marveled greatly at the chain's failure to unravel the mystery of such clashing testimony, and soon afterward the wonder-working chain disappeared because, tradition says, it began to despair of sustaining its reputation for perspicacity among a population so full of fraudulent resources.

Gems Are Cheap in Tiflis.

If you want to buy a quart of diamonds for a dollar or two, go to Tiflis.

Tiflis is the capital of Georgia, one of the new republics that have risen in the Caucasus on the ruins of the Russian empire. The value of the Georgian ruble is worth hardly anything at all. But the dollar has such abnormal purchasing power in this nation of lost values that it seems less like money than magic. You can get a fine dinner at Tiflis for ten cents, and room rent in the best hotel for $1 a month.

The Bolsheviki have ruined Georgia. They have killed industry and trade and consequently the value of the native ruble. The swarms of refugees from Russia have sold their most precious possessions to Tiflis merchants for food and clothing, until the stores of the city have become stocked with diamonds and pearls and all kinds of precious things which were paid for perhaps with a plate of beans or a pair of socks.—New York Evening Post.

One Interview in 110 Years.

The Dalai Lama of Lhasa in Tibet has just given an interview to an electrical engineer. This is the first time that a Lama has talked with a European in 110 years. Lhasa is on a plateau, 11,000 feet high which is perhaps desirable as sanitation is nonexistent. Tibet seems to want telegraphic communication with the outside world and there are faint signs of an industrial awakening. Mr. Fairley, a telegraph engineer, had an audience with "His Holiness," who proved to be kindly and very inquisitive. He also visited the Tibetan council called the "Council of Shapes." A twenty-four course luncheon followed.—Scientific American.

Grapefruit Has Rival.

Experimental scientists in the Department of Agriculture have successfully produced the tangelo, a cross between the tangerine and the grapefruit. It is said to be more tender than either, and to have all the juicy excellence of the grapefruit without the tendency to fly into the face of the spoon manipulator noted when the grapefruit is being eaten.

Small Girl's Generous Offer.

Little Rose was playing with her doll when the wig fell off. Just then a man came along who had no hair on the top of his head. Rose ran up to him and said: "Say, mister, you can have this wig to cover that empty spot on the top of your head if you want it."

ARMY PLANES IN BOMBING TEST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

On Board U. S. S. Henderson off the Virginia Capes, July 13.—With the gods of war and weather willing, the former destroyer G-102 will go down to "Davy Jones' locker" today, the prey of airmen.

Cloudy weather prevailing early this morning made it questionable whether favorable weather conditions would prevail for the aerial attack on the destroyer.

Forty six army planes, under the command of Brigadier General Mitchell, are getting their opportunity to demonstrate their ability in sinking seacraft in conjunction with the aerial bombing tests which are being conducted by the navy. The navy is cooperating in today's test on the ex-German destroyer, but the land planes of the army, flying to an objective more than a hundred miles from their base, are leading in the attack.

Two types of planes have been selected by the army men for the attack, the big twin-motored Martin bomber and the speedier De Haviland battle plane. The Martin bombers are equipped with six 250 pound bombs each, and will fly in divisions of three planes. The smaller and speedier planes will carry two bombs apiece and fly in divisions of two.

No restrictions have been placed upon the army bombers. They may choose their own formation and method of attack, and may bomb the anchored destroyer from any altitude.

General Mencher, chief of the Army Air Service, is watching the tests today with Captain A. W. Johnson of the Naval Aviation Forces, on board the U. S. S. Shawmut, the mother ship of the air forces which is cruising about close to the target.

A destroyer path has been formed from Hampton Roads to the target and elaborate preparations have been made for the rescue of any plane which may come to grief while at sea.

On the Henderson there is a large group of aerial experts, today's test being considered the most important yet held in the series.

BUILD PLATTEKILL ROAD NEXT YEAR

Connecting Link Between Kingston and Newburgh by Way of New Paltz on List For Early Attention —Ulster's Share Completed Years Ago.

The Newburgh News says that "After years of delay the improvement of the road connecting the North Plank and Plattekill highways will be undertaken next season. Incidentally the between Newburgh and Kingston by work will complete the improved route between Newburgh and Kingston by way of New Paltz."

Ulster county's share was completed years ago, but owing to the neglect of the Orange county authorities the few miles of road from the Orange county line is in wretched condition, and was never improved.

The News says that this connecting highway is No. 1 on the state-county list for reconstruction in Orange county the coming year. Under the Hewitt law, which governs all construction work, roads are listed in order, and their improvement is taken up accordingly.

If this stretch of road in Orange county is improved as contemplated it will mean much not only for Newburgh but for Kingston as well as it will carry considerable traffic that now detours to other roads to avoid the conditions that exist on that stretch of road in Orange county. When the road is completed it will make an ideal auto drive from Kingston to Newburgh by way of New Paltz over goood roads.

From Mosquito Great Headquarters.

South Rondout is said to believe that its plague of mosquitoes is caused by their being blown or scared out of Mingo Hollow, where the explosives plant is located. Stretch the theory a little further and you have a reason for the appearance of the pests all over Kingston, in many parts of which they were unknown before.

Sinn Feiners on June 25 wrecked a troop train travelling from Belfast and containing men of the Tenth Hussars who had formed part of the King's escort during the ceremonies in Belfast. A mine, which had been placed on the line at Avadoyle, County Armagh, exploded, and a number of carriages were hurled down the embankment. Twenty-five soldiers were killed, and a few score injured. Photo shows the cars down the embankment and the soldiers going through the ruins looking for some of the victims.

Lovers' Quarrels Not Trifles.

It has been said that lovers' quarrels are but the renewal of love. There was never a falser word. Every quarrel is a blot on a fair page. Forgiveness may erase it, but, at the best, the mark of the erasure is there forever, and the page wears thin.—S. G. Tallentyre.

NIGHT PURSUIT LANDS BURGLAR

Sheriff Kolts and Under Sheriff Haulenbeck Capture Man Who Broke Into Garage And Escaped Under Muzzle of Revolver In Hands of Forde.

About 4 o'clock this morning Sheriff Koltz received a telephone call stating a garage of A. B. Frederick and Frank W. Forde on the Saugerties road a short distance south of Neul's Hotel, formerly the W. L. Fisher place, had been burglariously entered and that a man who had been in the building was around the neighborhood. Sheriff Kolts jumped into his touring car and came after Under-Sheriff Tunis Haulenbeck and they sped to the place. There they found Mr. Forde and wife who told them that the garage had been wired with burglar alarms, so that a bell would ring in the house in case any of the windows were tampered with. That about 3:30 o'clock the bell attached to the burglar alarm wire from the garage rang and Mr. Forde getting up and looking out of a window toward the garage saw a man in the building moving about with a flashlight. Mr. Forde seized a revolver loaded with shot-filled cartridges and followed by his wife hurried to the garage where he found the door open. Mr. Forde ordered the man to come out and pointing the revolver at him told him to hold up his hands and back up against the building which the man did. Thinking that perhaps there might be other men in the garage he asked the fellow if there were others with him and he replied that there were. At this Mr. Forde turned his head dropping the revolver to his side and the burglar took to his heels at once and darted down the Saugerties road towards Kingston. Forde fired the revolver at him but the man was very fleet of foot and got away. After being told the above story by Mr. Forde and his wife who each gave a description of the man, Sheriff Kolts, Under-Sheriff Haulenbeck and Mr. Forde started with the automobile after the burglar. Going north to the West Shore railroad crossing they were told, after inquiry, by the crossing watchman that no one had been seen on the road or on the tracks since 2 o'clock. Sheriff Kolts and Haulenbeck then concluded that the fugitive had turned to the right while headed toward this city and went over to the Pine Bush road and would probably head north. They then went to the Katrine road at Marz's Hotel and turned toward the Pine Bush road where they met a man with a shotgun who informed them that he had been told of the entrance of the Forde garage and was lying in wait for him and would take care of him should he come along. He was told to keep up his vigil and the auto continued on its way. Soon after, not far from the Charles Hubscher farm, a man wearing a cap with coat on arm and answering the description given by Mr. Forde and wife was seen walking on the road toward them. When the man came near Mr. Forde told Sheriff Kolts, "He's the man." Under Sheriff Haulenbeck then asked him if he worked in that section, and as to the way to Kingston. The man said he was looking for work and came from Albany. Haulenbeck then jumped out of the auto and told the stranger to get in the car, which he did and he was handcuffed. The car was then run back to the Forde garage and Mrs. Forde positively identified him as the one who had entered the garage. When searched a searchlight was found in his coat pocket, a bunch of fourteen keys, five being master keys for ordinary door locks, the others desk keys and Yale or Sergeant lock keys, also a desk clock in a morocco leather case lined with moire silk, no doubt stolen by him.

This morning in jail the man gave his name to Seth Jocelyn as John Worbinskie, age 49 years. He said he was born in Russia and came here from Albany, was married and had a wife in Russia. He will be taken before Justice of the Peace Carle in the town of Ulster on a charge of unlawful entry and with attempted burglary. So far as is known nothing was stolen as the burglar alarm arrangement worked to a nicety.

MRS. KABER HYSTERICAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Courthouse, Cleveland, Ohio, July 13.—Bursting into wild shrieks, Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, alleged husband slayer, threw the court room into a near panic today when her trial was resumed.

Mrs. Kaber's wild actions followed receipt of an alleged "spirit message" from Dan Kaber, her husband, who was stabbed to death by hired assassins.

She suddenly flung herself back in the chair, rending the air with her screams.

A bailiff caught her. She broke loose from his arms, falling to the floor. She was finally carried out by two bailiffs as her wild shrieks penetrated the courtroom.

"Marian! Marian!" she screamed calling for her daughter.

The accused woman gave a terrified gasp as she read the purported message announcing that Kaber's spirit hovers at her side as she sits on trial charged with plotting his murder.

State's witnesses have testified she sought the aids of spirits to have him killed.

"Forgive me the wrong I have done you," says the murdered man's "message."

"Don't worry. You are safe from harm—always I am with you at your side."

The "message" came by special delivery.

Mrs. Kaber, collapsed again after her trial resumed this afternoon. After sobbing convulsively, she fell into a dead swoon.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Jane Knifer of Ladleton died after a long illness. Funeral and interment in Claryville Sunday, July 10.

Sarah K. Deyo, widow of the late Ezekiel Ira Deyo, died at her home at New Paltz this morning in her 75th year. She is survived by four sons, Abraham W. of Highland, Hiram W. of Montclair, N. J., Jesse of Springtown and Charles W. of St. Louis, Mo.; three daughters, Mrs. Edgar A. Radiker of Wallkill, Mrs. David Atkins of Pine Plains and Mrs. Jesse Fitch of Springtown; one brother, William C. Minard, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine Donaldson of Minnesota. The funeral will take place from her late residence on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, standard time, with interment in the family plot in the New Paltz Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Butler Kingfield, wife of George J. Kingfield, was held this morning at her home, No. 80 West Pierpont street, at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 at St. Peter's Church, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. J. Ostermann. The services were very largely attended by her many relatives and friends and the Society of Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Church attended the services in a body. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. At the conclusion of the Mass Herman La Tour sang "No Night There." The bearers were Frank Stenglein, Nicholas Hartman, Jacob Fahnrick and John Gitty. Father Ostermann accompanied the remains to St. Peter's Cemetery, where the committal services were held and the interment in the family plot.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Soceties.

Vanderlyn Council, Daughters of America, of this city held their regular meeting Tuesday evening with very large membership present. Their deputy state councilor, Mrs. Suzanne Decker of Highland was present and duly installed the officers in a very pleasing manner. The councilor extended a hearty welcome to all present. They also initiated two candidates. There were several guests from Imperial Chapter, Saugerties, and everything passed off satisfactory. The members of the council showed their appreciation of the services of the D. S. C. by presenting her with a handsome cut glass flower vase, which she accepted in a pleasing manner. The council may feel congratulated on their corps of officers. The evening closed with refreshments and all left in the early morning hours, feeling that they had spent several pleasant hours at a D. of A. session.

J. A. STILLMAN RESTS HIS CASE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 13.—Counsel for James A. Stillman rested their case in the multi-millionaire's suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman shortly before noon today, and a protracted, bitter legal wrangle which ensued immediately afterwards resulted in a victory for the defense, when Referee Daniel J. Gleason ordered stricken from the record all references in the testimony of Dr. Hugh Russell, Buffalo, N. Y., osteopath, to a trip Mrs. Stillman was alleged to have made to Boston.

Lake Erie's First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse on Lake Erie was built at Erie in 1818, the year the "Walk-in-the-Water" appeared. In 1829 Cleveland had its first lighthouse. It stood on the bluff on Main and Water streets, overlooking river and lake. It had a sturdy tower of brick that was replaced in 1872. It was 83 feet high, but towered 157 feet above the water. Its white light was visible about 21 miles. Its original cost was $55,775, this including the substantial keeper's house. The lamps consumed 301 gallons of "mineral oil" per year. In 1892 it was discontinued, a modern lighthouse replacing it.

Various Stages of the World.

Scientists, for purposes of convenience, have placed all peoples and all states of savagery, barbarism and civilization into four arbitrary stages—the two ages of stone, the Paleolithic, or Ancient Stone age, and the Neolithic, or Newer Stone age, the age of Copper or Bronze, and the age of Iron, according to knowledge or lack of knowledge of these materials. Paleolithic men were very crude workmen in stone, but later Neolithic men were finished workmen in the material. In the age of Copper or Bronze, these metals have displaced stone; these in turn to yield to a knowledge of working iron.

AVIATOR FALLS AT SHANDAKEN

Basil Rowe, of Shandaken, an aviator located at Mineola, L. I., came up to Shandaken Tuesday on his way to Fleischmanns in a Haviland scout plane, where he was going to take summer visitors out during the season.

This afternoon he took Benjamin Gulnick, an old school chum, up for a ride, and while on his way back to the landing place struck an air pocket and the plane fell. The top of an apple tree was the first object struck and there a part of the plane hung, the motor and some of the other parts going into an excavation for a cellar on the property of a man named Finch.

Almost miraculously, no one was hurt.

ANTI-BEER BILL SURE TO PASS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13.—The Campbell-Willis "anti-beer bill" will be passed by an overwhelming majority of the senate, even Republican and Democratic senators lined up against it admitted today.

The question of the constitutionality of the restrictions it imposes upon physicians in prescribing wine, whiskey and beer for the sick will probably be carried to the United States supreme court.

Opponents of the bill concede that the opposition in the senate will hardly muster 20 votes despite the announcement of powerful Republican leaders like Lodge of Massachusetts; Knox of Pennsylvania and Wadsworth, of New York, that they will vote against it.

THE SLEEPERS AWOKE

In the Clutch of the Law and Are Ordered Out.

William Dudley, Louis Shaw and George Davidson, the three strangers who were awakened from profound slumber at an early hour this morning, were later in the day given a chance to get out of town by Judge Schirick with a warning not to come back. They were found in a baggage car on the U. & D. tracks, near the freight house on Cornell street, by the police who were hunting for the fire bug who attempted to destroy the freight house, as told elsewhere.

Harvey Delamater of this city, who was found at the time asleep in an out house nearby was discharged with a suspended sentence.

All four were charged with trespassing on railroad property, and no one of them knew of the fire bug's attempt as they were all soundly sleeping and had not even heard the fire alarm bell ring.

Geniuses of Mixed Parentage.

Mating of that eminent Jewish tragedian, Junius Brutus Booth the elder, with a Christian, produced a triple progeny that lent a surpassing luster to the American stage, says Walter Hurt, in the Detroit Jewish Chronicle. Of this trio, the most renowned was Edwin Booth, the world's greatest Hamlet. As for his younger brother, John Wilkes Booth, although his memory is marred and his abilities are obscured by his tragic deed in Ford's theater in Washington, he is reputed to have been the greatest genius of a family phenomenally conspicuous for its histrionic gifts. Another brother, Junius Brutus Booth, Jr., was scarcely less accomplished.

Our Glorious Emblem.

When Vermont and Kentucky were admitted to the Union congress decreed that after May 1, 1795, "the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field." It was seen that the addition of a stripe for every new state would change the aspect of the flag from time to time, so on April 4, 1818, congress passed a resolution reducing the number of stripes to thirteen (one for each of the original colonies) and declaring that a new star should be added for each state. Thus for twenty-three years the official flag had fifteen stripes.

Manufacturing Billiard Balls.

Quite large elephant tusks are a requisite in the making of billiard balls. They are first cut into the required length, forming blocks from which the balls are to be carved. These blocks are placed in the hands of expert tracers who mark the standard measurements of circumference, after which the block goes to the cutter and is gradually cut by machine into spherical form. The process of polishing is done after six months, during which period the balls are kept in special dark drying chambers.

LOUGHRAN GIVES PLUMBERS $7

The large force of plumbers from the shop of B. Loughran Co. that have been on srtike for over three weeks because the employing plumbers had refused to pay $7 a day and offered $6 a day, returned to work this morning at the wage scale of $7 a day. An agreement was reported several days ago between the union and master plumbers at $6.50 per day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—The stock market opened this morning, with general gains throughout the list. Atlantic Gulf rose ⅜ to 24¼. American Sugar rose ¾ to 67½. American Tobacco rose ¾ to 121¼. Baldwin Locomotive was up ⅛ to 75¼. U. S. Steel opened unchanged to 74¼. Studebaker declined ⅛ to 80¾. General Motors rose ⅛ to 11⅛. Royal Dutch advanced ⅜ to 57. Bethlehem Steel "B" declined ½ to 48¾. General Asphalt rose ⅜ to 49¾. U. S. Rubber was up ¼ to 48¼ and Crucible Steel rose ⅛ to 56¼.

Closing out of some accounts caused weakness in many issues during the forenoon as about the only demands for stocks was from shorts. Many of the lower price issues were in supply.

The feature of the market in the afternoon was another sudden advance in Mexican Petroleum, that stock advancing from 99¼ to 103½. Movements in other issues were irregular, but most of the active stocks moved up from the low levels. International Harvester rallied to 74⅜. The motor stocks were aain subjected to pressure, Studebaker yielding over 2 points to 79¼, followed by a rally to 80.

The stock market closed steady today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Rose Always Loved.

The rose has been a favorite from earliest times. So deep a hold has it on the affections of the people that it is often spoken of as the "queen of flowers." It has figured in the literature of all ages and all nations. People in all stations of life yield homage to its beauty of form and color and to its delicious fragrance. It is loved by poor and rich alike. It is grown in the dooryards of the least pretentious cottages, where often the occupants are stinted in food and raiment, as well as on the grounds of large estates, where abound the choicest things that money can buy. It is also grown in immense quantities under glass and is the most popular winter cut flower for all occasions.

Hanging Pictures.

No excuse is possible for the room plastered with pictures. While we may not care to go to the extremes of the esthetic Japanese, allowing only one at a time to delight the eye, it is certain that any picture of exquisite beauty deserves to be hung far enough apart from others so that it can be enjoyed. The better the picture the better it deserves to be hung by itself. On the other hand a small picture alone on a large wall is not advisable. Let common sense help you to place it low enough and important enough so it will stand out and yet not be lost in an oasis of wall paper.

POULTRY

DUCK RAISING IS PROFITABLE

Pekins Are Most Popular Breed for Production of Meat and Runners for Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Although ducks do not appear to be as well adapted as chickens as a source of income to average farm conditions, yet many farmers are finding duck raising profitable as a side issue to their other farm operations. The demand for table ducks in the cities seems to be on the increase.

The period of incubation for ducks' eggs is 28 days, except for the Muscovy duck, which is 33 to 35 days. The eggs may be hatched either naturally by hens or ducks or artificially in incubators. Strong, fertile eggs are a prime essential to good hatching and are obtained only from stock properly mated and kept under the best possible conditions to secure health and vigor. Eggs from overfat breeding stock do not usually produce a large percentage of strong ducklings. Pekin and Indian Runner ducks rarely sit; consequently, if natural methods of incubation are to be used the eggs are usually hatched under hens. Duck eggs should be washed if dirty, for it does not appear to injure their hatching qualities.

Before setting a hen dust her thoroughly with insect powder. In applying this powder hold the hen by the feet, with her head hanging down, and work it thoroughly into the feathers, giving special attention around the vent and under the wings. Sitting hens should be fed whole or cracked grains, such as corn or wheat. Place 9 to 11 ducks' eggs under a hen, depending on her size and the season of the year, using the smaller number of eggs in cold weather and the larger number in warm weather. Confine the hens at hatching time and do not disturb them until they become restless, when it may be best to remove the ducklings that hatched first.

Hens must be well cared for in hatching ducks' eggs, as the period of incubation is a week longer than that of hens' eggs. It usually takes ducklings from 24 to 48 hours to hatch after they pick the shells; therefore it is advisable to allow the hen to get off the nest for feed and water when the first ducklings pick the shell and then confine her to the nest until the hatching is over. Ducks' eggs need more moisture than hens' eggs at hatching time, as it takes the ducks much longer to get out of the shell. Poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture advise, therefore, that the eggs should be sprinkled liberally with warm water previous to hatching.

Hens Make Good Mothers for Ducklings.

All duck eggs should be tested at least twice during incubation, preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days, and the infertile eggs and those with dead germs removed. Dead germs in duck eggs decompose very rapidly and are often detected by their odor and should be removed from the incubator.

Duck eggs having pure white shells can be tested as early as the fourth or fifth day and the infertile eggs sold to bakers for use in the kitchen.

Ducks are much easier to brood artificially than chickens, but they may also be raised under hens successfully. If raised by the latter method, it is advisable to confine the hens and allow the ducklings free range, as the hens are apt to wander too far away with their broods. Ducklings which are to be sold as green ducks are not usually allowed much range, but are fed heavily and forced for rapid growth. The ducklings which are to be kept for breeding should have the web of their feet punched, using a different number of punch marks for each year so that their age can be readily determined.

SELECT EGGS FOR SETTING

Avoid Those That Are Abnormally Small and Poorly Shaped—Stick to One Color.

Eggs that are abnormally small and poorly shaped should not be uesd for incubation; neither should eggs that have thin or very porous shells, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. If possible, eggs should be set when fresh, and it is never advisable to use for hatching eggs that are more than two weeks old. One of the quickest ways to obtain uniformity in the off spring is to select uniformly good-sized eggs of the same color.

Early Irish Coin.

One of the early coins in Ireland was the eagle, made of base metal and current about 1272, but an earlier coin was the farthing, made of silver, during the reigns of King John, and now very rare and of great value.

SHE ALSO KNEW TENNYSON

Poetic Business Man Got Something of a "Jolt" When He Tackled Little Waitress.

The man with the superior air was a poetic business man. He generally patronized a small lunchroom near his office. When he was not selling eggs at wholesale or something, he liked to read verse. His favorite was Tennyson's "Idylls of the King." And because he felt that he knew so much about it he thought he would have a little fun with the lunchroom waitresses, in a superior sort of way.

It began by naming the girls after the heroines in the poem. His regular waitress was a tall, gaunt person, but somewhat queenly as she bore down on him with a plate of hash. Her real name was Sadie.

"Sadie," he announced one night, "hereafter I'm going to call you Guinevere. Mind?"

"I should worry," said the waitress, shifting her gum, "but who's she?"

"The bride of King Arthur," was the reply.

"Awri, but I hope she's respectable. I ain't seen that fillum."

So it went. All the girls were properly renamed. And then one day a new waitress was on the job. She was small and dark. Exceedingly pretty, he thought.

"I haven't named you yet," he told her after a couple of nights.

Then he explained his little indoor sport.

"I'll let you be Elaine," he said.

"How ridiculous," she answered. "I can't be Elaine."

"Why not?"

"Tennyson says she was fair. I'm a brunette. Elaine the fair, Elaine the beautiful, Elaine the lily maid of Astolat.' Evidently you don't remember how the lines went."

The superior bookworm called for his check.—New York Sun.

CULTIVATE HABIT OF THRIFT

Practice Means That One Will Be Ready to Seize Opportunity When It Comes.

Practice thrift habitually. Make it as much a part of your routine as eating and sleeping. Get yourself systematized. Work on a definite schedule. Save regular amounts. Plan your work and your actions so that you will have no idle time, no lost motion, no wasted energy.

These are among the secrets of success, happiness and progress.

The time to begin the cultivation of thrift habits is now.

The most important message that can be conveyed to the people of this nation today is: "Get the thrift habit." Practice thrift not for a brief interval or intermittently, but habitually.

Disraeli said, "The greatest secret of success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes."

This brief sentence furnishes one of the best reasons for practicing thrift that ever has been given. It presents a phase of the question to which not enough attention is paid. Ordinarily thrift is looked upon as a means of safeguarding one against possible emergencies or of building up an accumulation of money for some definite purpose. But there are many unexpected turns in the pathway of life.—Thrift Magazine.

Friendly Warning.

Under the caption "A Friendly Hint" the following forcibly worded advertisement in Rivington's New York Gazette of January 18, 1775, was directed against a resident who had made a grievous financial error, very much to his own advantage:

"If a merchant of this city who lives near the Exchange, not many miles from Broad street, does not within 14 days from the above date return £10 which, by mistake, he was overpaid in settling an account, a narrative of the whole transaction, with his name at length, will be published in a future paper and the truth of it supported by an affidavit. If, in the meantime, the gentleman should recollect the error and will make any overtures to Mr. Boole at Mrs. Haight's, in Smith street, secrecy will be observed."

Advertisers at First Shy.

It took several years after the establishment of newspapers in America for advertising to become popular. John Campbell, the postmaster of Boston, who, in 1704, started the Boston News Letter, the first real newspaper in this country, had great difficulty in persuading his townspeople to advertise their wares or their wants. William Bradford and Peter Zenger in New York were hardly more fortunate at first, and even Benjamin Franklin, for many years after he began the publication of the Pennsylvania Gazette, found his advertising columns very meager. After 1850, however, the reluctance to advertise died away and all the leading papers showed that they were well supported.

To Be Exact.

"So you called on the famous novelist?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Gawker.

"Did you find him in a brown study?"

"Why, no. I think the room was finished in blue."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

With women who take up athletics the tendency is to overdo it, says W. L. George, England's foremost authority on athletic sports.

Glass Workers Lose Sight.

Many of the workmen in the glass factories of Venice begin to lose their sight after they have passed their fortieth year and soon become totally blind. The impairment of vision is caused by the excessive heat and the glare from the glass furnaces.

CITY MILK IS UP TO STANDARD

Report of June Milk Examinations Shows That All But One Dealer Met the City Milk Standard.

That the city milk dealers are striving to meet with the city milk standard is shown by the report of Miss E. Eleanor Easton of the city laboratory of the milk tests during the month of June. The report shows that all but one dealer, the Kingston City Dairy, met the required standard. The report in full follows:

AGRIGRAPHS.

Are you selecting your poultry and stock for exhibit at the fair?

Are you selling as much stuff as you might to the summer resort folks near your farm?

Broad, smooth, firm collars will prevent nine-tenth of the sore shoulder troubles on work horses.

You can't do good work if the flies heckle you constantly. Neither can the livestock. Protect them.

Roadside markets have helped more than one farm family, living on a much-traveled state highway, to add a neat little sum to its bank account.

Green forage crops and some grain in addition to the waste products are necessary if you make the kind of pork for which there is a demand.

Just because he has finished high school is no reason why the farm boy's education should stop. The state college at Ithaca offers five agricultural correspondence courses free to residents of the state. A postal will bring particulars.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, July 12.—Mrs. J. Elvy and brother, E. Neal, enjoyed a trip to Scranton, Pa., and visited relatives there. They went by way of Oneonta and visited other points of interest which made the trip a very interesting and pleasant one all around.

Katharine Lemming was taken very ill early Sunday morning but is now better and we hope she will soon be well again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lemming nicely entertained with music and games a party of friends Friday evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Short, Mr. and Mrs. H. Short and sister, E. Short, Miss Gertrude Short and Messrs Kenneth and Loyd Warren. All enjoyed the evening very much. Very nice refreshments were served.

We are sorry to learn Mrs. Lester Bell Sr., is ill. We trust she will soon be well again.

Loren Bell enjoyed the Fourth at Kingston. He spent a few days there visiting relatives and friends.

S. Tanner and daughter, Hattie, Mr. and Mrs. Zohling and daughter, Beatrice of New York city, stopped over to visit their friend, Mrs. Loomis, while passing through here on their way up the line, where Mr. Loomis's son is in camp.

Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Nellie Baldwin, who spent the winter away have returned to their home here for the summer.

The Rev. McLaren, who is sick, has been given three weeks' vacation. He and Mrs. McLaren have joined their son, and daughter at "camp" on the Connecticut line.

Miss Anna Simpson who attended Syracuse last year has a nice position during the summer in the district attorney's office.

Miss Marion Winne who spent some time in the city has returned home.

Jas. H. Clancy had a bad fall Friday night, July 1. It was dark and rain and she made a misstep. She fell to the road on a railroad tie and was stunned for a while but managed to get home. Dr. Gross attended her and we are glad she has fully recovered.

Many out of town people were in the place over the Fourth.

Hazen to Have a Modern Store.

Max Hazen recently bought the Kennedy block on lower Broadway, as stated in The Freeman at the time, and expects to occupy one of the stores on the ground floor as a modern shoe store. He is having alterations made to the interior of the store adjoining Block's dry goods store in the same building, and when alterations are completed will have one of the most modern shoe stores in the city. He will continue in business at present location at No. 19 Broadway until the new store is ready when he will take possession. The present store since Mr. Hazen has been remodeled and known as "The Max Hazen Block."

COUNTY COURT. ULSTER COUNTY. VINA W. WESTBROOK as administratrix with the will annexed of the goods, chattels and credits which were of Maria C. Westbrook, deceased, Plaintiff, against ISAAC G. DAVIS and MARGARET DAVIS, his wife; CALVIN OSTERHOUDT and MARTHA OSTERHOUDT, his wife, and THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made in the above entitled action on the 8th day of June, 1921, and entered in the Ulster County Clerk's Office June 11, 1921, I, the undersigned the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Kingston on the 4th day of August, 1921, at 12:00 o'clock noon, the premises directed in and by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about half a mile northerly from the village of Krippiebush, being the southwest portion of the farm formerly owned by Cornelius D. De Lamarte, deceased, and is bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING on the southeast bounds of the other land of Hannah Davis, widow of said John H. Davis, deceased, and runs from thence south 44° east 2 chains, then south 16° west 2 chains and 13 links as the stone wall now stands, thence as the wall now stands south 44° west 1 chain and 50 links, then as the wall stands, south 21° west 6 chains and 10 links to the bounds of land of Hannah M. Roosenkranse, then along her bounds north 68° west 7 chains and 50 links to the west side of a small brook, then south 68° and 30' west 2 chain and 50 links to cedar tree on the Davis Wager road, then along said road north 12° west 1 chains and 10 links or to the bounds of land formerly belonging to the heirs of Paul Wager, deceased, then along the same north 32° east 4 chains and 50 links to the bounds of Hannah Davis aforesaid, then along her bounds south 68° east 5 chains, then along the same north 32° east 5 chains and 41 links to the place of beginning. Containing 5 acres and 6-10 of an acre of land more or less. Reserving to James H. Smith his heirs and assigns, the right and privilege of riding and driving over the land herein described as the road now runs from the residence occupied by said Smith in a westerly direction and intersects the said Wager road on the west side of the said small Brook, said road to be one rod wide.

ALSO ALL THAT CERTAIN PIECE OR PARCEL OF LAND situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about half a mile northerly from the village of Krippiebush, being bounded as follows, viz: BEGINNING in the corner of the center of the stone wall on the westerly side of the road that leads from the public road near the house owned by the heirs of Paul Wager to the house of the party of the first part, from thence running as the fence now stands north 7½° and 45 minutes west 4 chains 14 links to the center of the wall at the bounds of the heirs of Paul Wager, thence along said bounds south 12° west 2 chains and 60 links to a stake in the ground, thence south 60° and 10' west 2 chains and 50 links, then south 40° and 15 minutes east 2 chains and 22 links, then north 50° and 45' west 2 chains and 75 links to the place of beginning. Containing 3 acres and 4-10th of an acre of land. With the privilege of a free road and outlet from the said described lot to the public highway to pass on said road from said lot about a chain from the line of the heirs of Paul Wager and running southerly to said public road over the premises occupied and occupied by the heirs of Paul Wager where the said road is used by the party of the first part but the party of the second part is bound to adjust and help keep said road in repair to be used by the party of the second part.

and James H. Smith or his assigns, and as more particularly excepted and reserved in a deed from Hannah Davis to Isaac G. Davis, dated April 13, 1899, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book 350 of Deeds, pages 180, on the 15th day of April, 1899.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND situate in the town of Marbletown, County of Ulster and State of New York, about three-quarters of a mile northeasterly from the village of Krippiebush and is bounded and described as follows, to-wit: BEGINNING at stones laid together in the north corner of a farm now belonging to the heirs of Jacob Eckert, deceased, from thence running along the same south 28° 45 minutes east 27 chains to stones in a run of water called the Tare Kayle Kill, the bounds of land belonging to Ten Eyck D. W. Veeder, then along his land north 22° 15 minutes east 5 chains 50 links to a heap of stones marked "E. L." formerly a corner tree, then continuing said course 2 chains 50 links to a heap of stones in the bounds of land belonging to James H. Van Demark then along the same north 24° 30 minutes east 10 chains to a chestnut tree marked, and north 26° 45" west 12 chains 82 links to a stone set in the ground the bounds of land late of Solomon Freer, then along the same north 46° west 3 chains 90 links to a heap of stones and north 19° 15 minutes east 1 chain and 50 links to stones, then south 61° 45 minutes west 29 chains to a large rock oak tree marked in the bounds of land belonging to John W. Wager, then along his land south 49° west to stones in the bounds of land belonging to Hannah Rosenkranse, then along her land south 67° 30" east to the place of beginning. Containing 99 acres of land, and being the same premises which were conveyed by Henry Van Demark and Elizabeth Van Demark, his wife, to Isaac I. Hasbrouck by a deed dated February 17, 1835, and conveyed by Gross Hasbrouck and Sarah Ann Hasbrouck, his wife, and Mary Ann Hasbrouck and Rachel Chambers, to Cornelius D. De Lamater, by a deed dated May 1, 1847, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Book of Deeds No 70, pages 12 and 13, on March 31st, 1848, at 11:30 o'clock A. M.

ALSO ALL THAT CERTAIN PIECE OF LAND, situated in Krippiebush, on both sides of a stream of water called the Tare Kayle Kill and is bounded and described as follows: BEGINNING at a heap of stones laid together by the side of a stone wall and in the south angle of a wood lot belonging to Ten Eyck S. W. and Harry Veeder, and on the bounds of Cornelius D. De Lamater from thence running along said De Lamater's former bounds north 64° east 18 chains 92 links to a stake in a large stone row on the bounds of the said Cornelius L. EXPRESS WORKERS' WAGE TO BE CUT

Railway Labor Board Orders 6 Cents an Hour Lopped Off—Were Increased 16 Cents an Hour in 1920.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, July 13.—Payrolls of the American Railway Express Company will be reduced approximately $8,000,000 annually, t is estimated today, as a result of wage reductions for employes ordered by the United States Railway Labor Board. The board ordered a cut of 6 cents an hour, effective August 1, in the pay of approximately 5,000 workers. Increases of approximately 16 cents an hour were given the express workers in 1920.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mazzacone-Altimare.

Glasco, July 13.—John Mazzacone, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mazzaccone, and Miss Mary Altimare, only living child of Michele Altimare, were married Monday, July 11, in New Jersey.

Lauber-Schubbard.

At 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Miss Lillian E. Shubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Shubbard, of Massell Park, Baltimore, Md., became the bride of Calkin G. Lauber, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lauber, of Ellenville, N. Y. The ceremony, which was with the ring, took place at the bride's home, the Rev. Frank Fielding, of Sexton M. E. Church, Baltimore, officiating. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Elma Grimt of Irvington, Baltimore, and Otto Johnson, Jr., of New York city. The bride is a member of the Sexton Methodist Church of Baltimore and active in all social centers. The groom is a graduate of Pratt School of Electrical Engineering and served a number of months in the signal service during the late war. He has for the past year been engaged ed in California and other western states. After a wedding journey spent in New York city and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Lauber will return to Grand Falls, Montana, where he has an excellent position awaiting him. The good wishes of their many friends go with them for a prosperous journey through life.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A large tree at the Judge Severyn B. Sharpe property, near the corner of Albany and Clinton avenues with long extending roots, which tree because of decay has been an eyesore for a number of years is being cut down. There are two or three others along the Albany avenue front which if cut down would be an improvement to that section as they take up part of the sidewalk.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for this Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

GOLF OUTFIT FOR PRESIDENT

Mayor Bailey of Denver, Commander of Legion Post, One of the First Contributors.

Presidential golf paraphernalia enought to last the four-year term was received by President Harding when Miss Pauline Trumbo entered the White House bearing golf sticks and bag and golf balls from many parts of the country. The sticks and bag, chosen by "Chick" Evans, open golf champion, are the gift of the Fort Morgan (Colo.) post of the American Legion to the nation's chief executive.

Miss Trumbo visited twelve states in the course of the journey from the Colorado city to the national capitol. In every city and state visited the mayor or governor contributed an engraved golf ball for President Harding.

Miss Pauline Trumbo.

The collection of golf balls started in Denver with gutta percha "pills" from Governor Shoup of Colorado, Mayor Bailey of Denver, the commander of the Legion post and a Denver newspaper.

LEGION MEN BURY PATRIOT

"Sargint" James Flanagan, Last of Custer Scouts, Laid to Rest in North Dakota.

Indian fighter, veteran of the Civil war and ardent patriot, "Sargint" James Flanagan, eighty-four years old and actually the last surviving scout of General Custer's Seventh cavalry, massacred on the Little Big Horn, was laid to rest by the American Legion in Mandan, N. D., in one of the most unique and impressive funeral ceremonies ever witnessed in the northwest.

Veterans of five wars participated in the ceremonies. A faltering but proud trio of Grand Army survivors carried at the head of the cortege the same colors which the old sergeant for years had borne as a color guard. Stalwart young veterans of the World war sent the funeral volley crashing over the patriot's grave.

"Sargint" Flanagan was a native of Greenfield, Mass. In the mid-fifties he joined the mad rush to the gold fields of California. He drifted back to Ohio and joined the 11th Regiment of Ohio Cavalry, serving through the Civil war. Later he enlisted in the Seventh cavalry at Fort Lincoln.

POPULAR SIGNAL CORPS GIRL

Motion picture actresses are alluring to Chicago members of the American Legion, but when it comes to a showdown they vote for their ex-service comrades. This was demonstrated when Miss Helen Hunt Carey, a former signal corps girl, was voted the most popular girl in Chicago at the Legionnaire club show.

Miss Carey's total of votes was 46,254, which was 8,000 more than her nearest rival, a well-known movie actress, got. When Miss Carey returned from France, after serving 14 months in the A. E. F., she was elected commander of Sig-Yeo post of the American Legion, composed of former signal corps girls and yeomanettes.

Juvenile Measure.

A little girl from the West who is visiting us has her own way of measuring distance. When asked by a caller where her home was, she replied: "Two go-to-beds and two get-ups from here."—Boston Transcript.

HOW

SCIENCE HAS OVERCOME DREADED POTATO BUG.—The Potato Magazine calls attention to the fact that certain regions of the upper peninsula of Michigan have been virtually freed of that notorious pest, the potato bug, by the operations of a tiny parasitic fly which lays its eggs upon the striped beetle. Grubs hatched from these eggs bore into the potato bug's body and eat out his inside works.

If it were not for parasites that prey upon the potato bug, it would scarce be possible to grow any potatoes in this country, despite all the farmer could do to poison the insect with paris green.

That destructive beetle was originally native to mountain districts of Colorado, where it fed on a wild variety of potato plant called the "sand bur." It is supposed to have been carried into Missouri by the cattle traffic, and in 1864 it crossed the Mississippi river. In the early seventies it had crossed the Detroit river and Lake Erie was literally alive with potato bugs, passengers on ships or whatever else would keep them afloat. They reached the Atlantic coast in 1878, and the beaches were soon swarming with them. Vessels were boarded by them in such numbers that hatches had to be battened down.

At that period and for some time afterward much alarm was felt lest the potato would become an extinct vegetable in the United States. But nature has a way of dealing with such mischiefs, and before long parasitic enemies of the beetle multiplied in such numbers as to make possible its control.

The above-mentioned fly, which has done such good work in Michigan, will be colonized in other parts of the country, and may solve the potato bug problem for good and all.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ALBERTA'S CLAIMS TO FAME

How Northwestern Canadian Province "Manufactures" Weather for the United States.

The prairie provinces of Canada—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—are not without their bids of fame. For example:

The last of the wild buffalo herds of America, survivors of the millions of animals which roamed the plains and woodlands of the continent, now range through northwestern Alberta.

This province alone is estimated to contain 15 per cent of the world's known coal supply.

The myriad of wild ducks, geese, and other migratory fowl that fly northward each spring are for the most part bound for the northern parts of the three prairie provinces, where they build their nests and rear their young.

And much of the weather of the United States is manufactured in Alberta. This is not an idle fancy. The United States weather bureau recognizes that a large number of what are technically known as "disturbances" originate near the little town of Medicine Hat, a few miles over the Canadian line north of Montana, sweep down along the roots of the Rockies and spread out to the eastward, carrying in their trains cold waves, windstorms, rain, snow and blizzards.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

How England Honors War Dogs.

War dogs have not been forgotten altogether and a movement is on foot in England to place a monument in Kensington Gardens, London, in memory of the dogs that played important parts in the great war. The suggested memorial may take the form of four sculptured dogs representing various breeds and facing the four points of the compass. The movement has been received with considerable approval and it is likely that there will be little trouble in raising the money necessary to carry the project through. This well-merited recognition of the honorable part played by dogs is in line with the placing of a tablet in memory of the horses and mules that served in the war by the War department offices.

How Canary Uses Towel.

"Yes," observed the Lady of the House, "I've taught my canary to use a bath towel."

"How did you manage to do that?" inquired the interested visitor.

"Well," answered the Lady of the House, "after taking his bath the canary would nearly break his neck trying to get dry. So I put a couple of pieces of bath towel on the top of the cage. Now as soon as he has taken his bath he hops up on these pieces of towel and rubs himself against them until he is dry."—New York Sun.

How Paper Mill Waste Is Used.

The tremendous amount of research work being done in all fields of manufacture to convert waste into wealth is showing gratifying results in the operation of sulphite mills through the recovery of alcohol and solid fuel from waste liquors. The alcohol is called sulphite spirit and while entirely unlike wood alcohol it is equally valuable for power purposes being now in steady use by the omnibuses of London.

Isle Royale in Lake Superior.

Isle Royale is the largest of a group of small islands in Lake Superior. They formerly constituted a county, but now form a part of Houghton county, Michigan. Isle Rayale, known principally as a summer resort, is about forty-five miles long and nine miles wide. The island is about eight hours' ride by steamer from Duluth, Minn., but is nearer to Port Arthur, Ont.

U. & D. SCORE 9, SCHUYLERS 4

The Ulster & Delaware ball tossers under the efficient management of Manager Joe Long now top the Industrial Twilight League by adding another win Tuesday evening when they took the Peter Schuylers into camp by a score of 9 to 4 at the Athletic Field. Williams was on the slab for the railroaders and pitched good ball. Nicklos hurled them over for the cigar-makers.

There will be no game this evening, but Thursday evening at Athletic Field the Columbias are scheduled to clash with the Peter Schuylers.

The score by innings Tuesday:

GEN. PILSUDSKI'S LIFE ATTEMPTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Copenhagen, July 13.—Discovery of a plot to overthrow the Polish government at Warsaw was followed by an attempt to assassinate General Pilsudski, leader of the Polish army, said an unconfirmed report from Warsaw to the Berlin Tienden today.

The attempt to kill General Pilsudski was frustrated by bad marksmanship. Several men entered General Pilsudski's quarters and fired at him, but all missed. Later several arrests were made.

BOB MARTIN HURDLES MORAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—Bob Martin is coming along.

The lanky West Virginia "Hill Billy" has taken a long step forward in the heavyweight division today by his knock-out victory over Frank Moran.

In stretching the veteran Pittsburgh battler on the canvas for the count in seven rounds Martin accomplished something that established him as a prolific hitter, more, he is the only boxer aside from Fred Fulton, who has scored a knock-out over Moran in recent years.

No matter what may be said about Moran's class as a ringster, the fact remains that he is one of the most rugged fighters this country has ever produced. He may be slow. He certainly lacks science and he has never been known to over-train for any battle he ever fought. But it takes a good man to put him away, and Bob Martin did it.

"He's a good, willing, hard-hitting lad," they said. "When he learns how to punch and how to follow up an advantage he'll be right there among 'em."

Today he has apparently overcome both of these handicaps. He used his left on Moran with punishing effect, more so, perhaps, because he hurt his right early in the bout. And he kept after the blonde Pittsburgher from the first gong to the finish.

One more thing about this soldier champion—he can take a stout wallop and shake it off with ease. Moran bounced Mary Ann off Martin's features a number of times in last night's fracas and all Martin did was come back for more.

As he ranks today Martin is not ready to battle for the heavyweight championship of the world but he is surely coming along, and with the immense interest that is being shown in the heavyweight division the boxing public is mighty glad to see such boxers as Tom Gibbons, Bob Martin, Harry Greb and Captain Bob Roper crowd into the spotlight.

CIGARETTE SET BUS ON FIRE

This morning shortly aften 10 o'clock as one of Kidd's big auto buses running between Kingston and New Paltz was on its way up Broadway in charge of Chauffeur Martin Jordan, the smell of smoke filled the interior, and Jordan brought the car to a stop at McEntee street, when it was found that the cushion on the rear seat and part of the wood work was on fire.

A still alarm of fire was sent in to the Central Fire Station, but the fire was extinguished before the firemen reached the scene due to the fact that Hugh F. Connelly, whose place of business is at the corner of Broadway and Newkirk avenue, stretched his garden hose to the bus and played a stream of water on the fire.

Chief Chipp, of the fire department, who investigated, said that the fire was caused by one of the men passengers in the rear seat carelessly dropping a lighted cigarette on the floor. Residents nearby say that the three men who it is thought caused the fire alighted from the bus and walked away without attempting to give Chauffeur Jordan any assistance to save the bus from being destroyed by the fire.

Flowers Found New Homes.

It is not generally known that the belladonna lily was procured from South America in 1593, while the Guernsey lily was brought from Japan and was first cultivated at the beginning of the Seventeenth century in the garden of an Englishman in Paris. This plant is said to have derived its name from the following episode. A ship, laden with bulbs, was wrecked off the coast of Guernsey. A number of the bulbs were cast upon the shore and took root in the soil, where they grew rapidly.

THE MOST EQUITABLE FORM OF RATE

In Gloversville, N. Y., the Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of the consumers, appointed a special committee consisting of five members to investigate and report on the Service Charge of 50c per month introduced by the local company. It was put up to this committee to determine whether the service charge or a minimum charge would be more equitable.

Their report reads:

"After an analysis of the figures of the company we can see no grounds to recommend opposition to the proposed manner of increasing consumer gas costs and after careful study believe the proposed Service Charge to be more equitable to all consumers than either a minimum rate or an increased rate to $1.80 per 1,000 cubic feet. Under the proposed service charge your committee believes that every consumer of gas pays his equalized costs of the service and neither the small consumer nor the large consumer is compelled to carry a load that should be shared by both."

This conclusion is of importance! It means, as applied to Kingston, the company can maintain lower rates for gas with the service charge than without. This is of great advantage to the City as was pointed out by the action taken by the Merchants' Association of New York City an account of which was recently published by us.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the "Service Charge" is now in use in at least forty states in the Union and has been passed on by most of the Utility Commissions as the best form of rate.

THE PROUD TRUNK.

"I feel sorry," said the trunk, "for other trunks which have not traveled."

"I've never traveled very much," said the suitcase near by.

"I've been once to the seashore," the suitcase continued, "and when the trip was over with I had a goodly smell of the ocean for sometime after. Quite damp bathing suits were put inside me."

"Have you never been anywhere else but to the seashore?" asked the trunk.

"Oh, yes," said the suitcase. "I've been to the country, too. I went filled with all sorts of interesting things. There were stockings with holes which were taken in me, and lots of other things of that sort which needed mending.

"And then I came back with different things in me."

"Indeed," said the trunk, "and what, pray tell, did you carry coming home?"

"I came home filled with apples and potatoes and I can tell you I had quite an exciting trip home. You see my owner, who is quite a grown-up person, had been to visit her mother and that was why the stockings were in the suitcase, or in me, as you care to say it."

"I don't care to say it," said the trunk.

"Very well," said the suitcase, "no harm done, I'm sure. But you see, we went by train, and coming home we were invited to ride in a motor car owned by some very fine and very rich people. Oh, it was a very smart car, and I was strapped on behind along with beautiful leather suitcases and all covered over with a leather cover.

"Never," said the suitcase, "in all my suitcase life had I traveled in such style.

"I knew my owner would feel quite badly if I should come apart, and so I had a very exciting time trying to keep together and making believe to those very smart and rich people that beautiful dresses were in me instead of apples and potatoes.

"My owner loves to carry things home like that after she has visited her mother. Gracious me, there isn't anything she won't take in me! Food, food, food! How much food I've carried.

"Of course I'm of straw, as you can see, and I'm not very strong now. I've been on a good many journeys, though I've been mostly back and forth between one or two places. That is why I cannot say I have traveled far.

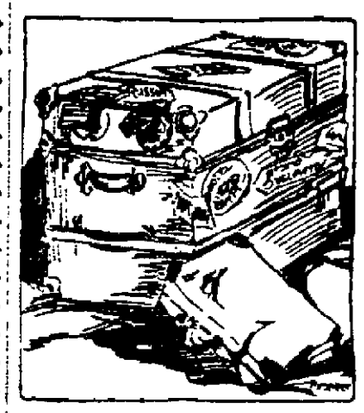
"Not for sometime when she is going soon to visit her mother. She saves them as her mother is so good and willing about darning stockings.



"Not Very Strong."

My owner, I fear, doesn't like to darn them. She isn't lazy, though, Trunk, so don't get that idea in your trays. I would say 'head,' but of course 'trays' is a more suitable word."

"Ah," said the trunk, "I feel sorry for you, suitcase, but I feel even sorrier for other trunks which haven't traveled. I've seen trunks which had barely a label on them.

"Now a label is a card or a ticket of some sort which has an address on it, or the name of a hotel where one was stopped.

"Dear me, I've labels all over the world. I've been to Greece and Italy, and Egypt and Spain, and Norway and Sweden and England and Scotland, and Wales and many other countries.

"I've traveled by sea, and I've traveled by land. I probably will travel by airship one of these days when the people who own me get an airship. They may, you know. They're so fond of traveling that I don't see any reason why they should leave the clouds and the high air out of their travels.

"Ah yes, I am a traveled trunk. I don't know any more because I've traveled so much, but at least when trunks are being bandied about I can let the other trunks know that though I am being thrown about a bit, I've been to a long list of places, and will name them next, too.

"That will be impressive and fine!"

GOOD THINGS FOR LUNCHEON.

Now that the fresh mushroom is ready for the gathering let us have:

Cream of Mushroom Soup.—Chop fine one pound of fresh mushrooms, and put into a double boiler with one pint of milk. Cook one-half hour, and strain. Add one pint of thin cream; when it comes to a boil, season with pepper and salt, add one-fourth of a cupful of butter and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour stirred with a little cold milk. When serving, add a spoonful of whipped cream for each cup.

Smothered Chicken.—Cut up the chicken as for frying. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a frying pan. Dredge the chicken with flour and pepper and put into the hot frying pan and cook several minutes adding bits of butter, as needed. Add boiling water to not quite cover the chicken and let simmer one to four hours according to the age of the chicken; cover tightly. A half-hour before serving season with salt. A small piece of onion improves the flavor; it should be cooked with the chicken.

Creamed Calf's Brains.—Cover the brains with cold water and let soak over night. In the morning drain off all the water and cover with boiling water; cook for one-half hour. Drain off the water, separate the brains and skin them. Blend one tablespoonful of butter with an equal amount of flour and add a little milk. Stir and cook until smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chop the brains and add them to the sauce. Cook for three or four minutes and serve immediately.

Carrots, fresh and crisp, ground through the fine knife of a meat grinder, added to salad dressing and served on lettuce, make a most wholesome salad rich in mineral salts.

Bed's Mammoth sage is the most highly prized as it grows very large leaves with the leaf stalks up from the soil, keeping them clean. The leaves are of fine flavor and much used in pork or pork sausage.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

London, July 13.—Commander Viscount Curzon, M. P., eminent authority on international politics, in an interview granted the International News Service discussed the recent pronouncements of Lloyd George and General Jan Smuts that no rapprochement should be entered into with the United States on armaments.

General Smuts stated at the Imperial Conference following Lloyd George's overtures to America, that it was his belief that the most fatal mistake of all would be a race in armaments with America. Commander Viscount Curzon in his interview discussed recent limitation suggestions and takes the view that the formula for a naval agreement should be a financial one, in opposition presumably, to the admiralty view, which is that it should be expressed in big ships. Lord Curzon said:

"Although we have been discussing this question of a naval holiday for so long the clear fact remains that up to now there has been nothing but talk. Whether international agreement is to be arrived at still remains to be seen for the lead that we gave long ago has not been followed.

Japan, it is true, is credited with views similar to our own but America is silent and we can only speculate as to the eventual outcome of it all.

No good can come from recrimination. I regard it as absolutely all important in this matter that we should not be tempted, however strongly we may feel into any criticism of whatever action America feels justified in adopting.

It must be remembered that America is perfectly entitled to take any action she likes. We have no right to cavil at her decision even if it should not agree with what we may regard as the best. If we were in her position we should resent interference.

'It is obvious that there are some Americans who want their country to possess the biggest navy in the world and to a nation that prides itself on going ahead the ambition is understandable. They say they can afford to gratify their desire and they do not see why they should not.

"I am quite certain there is no aggressive intent behind such plans, for America is not aggressive—at any rate in the sense that Germany was. It is simply an expression by a wealthy nation of its national pride in being able to say with regard to the navy as it does in other activities that it possesses 'the biggest thing yet.'

"At the same time, such views have to be reconciled with the idea of the League of Nations and similar schemes that had their genesis on the other side of the Atlantic and I am afraid it is not thoroughly recognized by all Americans that there is a certain danger in owning these enormous fighting machines.

"The temptation on the part of those who create them must be in the end to say 'Why not use them?' While that possibility is present everyone gets nervous.

'I do not see how we can possibly go any farther than we have done in reducing armaments until encouragement is given by people outside our shores. Our attitude, which was reiterated this week at the opening of the imperial conference by Mr. Lloyd-George, leaves no room for doubt we should be only too willing to arrive at some agreement which would have the effect of limiting armaments.

'It is largely open to doubt whether we have not already gone too far. In a few years' time we shall have only four ships or possibly five, embodying the lessons of the battle of Jutland, as against eighteen that America will possess, and that is a serious situation. In addition, we have disposed of an enormous number of destroyers. It is true that they were somewhat obsolete and had been subjected to great wear and tear during the war, but we have no information that similar clearances have been made elsewhere.

'No one, in short, has done so much to reduce naval armaments as we have done, and we certainly cannot afford to take any further risks until some definite agreement has been arrived at between the nations.

'That agreement has not been reached, although no one can seriously contemplate any further resort by civilized nations, in our lifetime at any rate, to the arbitrament of war.

"We must leave no stone unturned in our endeavor to arrive at some sort of agreement on this tremendously important subject, and in my view it is much better not to attempt to tie down too definitely the countries concerned. We shall achieve success more quickly if we allow ample latitude to individual countries.

As to the form that the limitation should take there can be little doubt that to express it in the numbers of ships that would be permitted is to invite many difficulties, unless we are able to formulate some scheme that is easily worked.

Even then there would be a necessity for considerable latitude for the nation authorized to possess certain capital ships might project smaller craft in proportions that conceivably could lead to dispute.

And the country that did not want one at all might be compelled through the working of the scheme to embark on enterprises that she did not desire.

It would probably be found in the event of definite agreement between the nations that a more workable plan would be to adopt the experience of a limit expressed not in numbers of vessels but in tonnage. With proper calculations based on existing rates of exchange it ought to be possible to arrive at some fixed amount that would not be opposed to the use of the nations concerned.

"It is an international matter and deep consideration would rightly be taken to guard by the statesmen, the function of the naval experts being to tender the necessary advice.

'But all these considerations are more or less speculative. What we want is a practical, duly authenticated proposal. We have not got it yet, and until we do we must see that we do nothing further to lower our naval efficiency in the matter of equipment.

'Until there is a more definite response to our offer to limit armaments than there has been up to now we must hold our hand for weakness merely invites aggression.'

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

MYSTERY SHIPS INTEREST NAVY

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, July 13.—Naval officers are considering plans for an ocean-wide campaign in search of the "mystery ships" which have been reported within the last week, it was learned today.

Although the navy department has taken no official action in connection with theories that a "pirate ship is marauding along the Atlantic coast, it was learned that plans are under consideration for a drive upon the sea to exterminate the buccaneers, if it is definitely established that the reported "mystery" ships are pirate vessels.

Secretary Denby stated today that thus far no naval vessel has sighted the strange vessel which has been reported by commercial mariners but indicated that the navy department is giving the closest consideration to the reports which have been made by Captain Giles of the steamship Munalbro, and others, who have sighted the phantom ship.

If a naval search for the alleged pirate ships is decided upon, it is probable that the seas will be swept by combined surface and air forces. Fleet grey destroyers will be sent to comb the seas and aircraft will scout along the coast in the same manner in which they scouted for enemy submarines during the war.

While the navy department, the coast guard service and the bureau of navigation are withholding a sea search pending receipt of more definite reports on the mysterious vessel, it was learned that positive action is being taken by the department of justice in tracing down the whereabouts of seamen who are suspected of having piratical tendencies.

The haunts of seamen in the ports of the Atlantic seaboard are being combed in the hope that some information may be secured of the outfitting of a pirate craft. American consulates have been asked to forward any information obtainable on any mysterious marine expeditions that may have set forth from foreign ports. A report that Scotland Yard broke up a pirate undertaking several months ago, and that the men who were concerned in this alleged undertaking have since disappeared is being closely scanned here.

All descriptions of the mystery ship which have thus far been received here have been rather indefinite, officials stated today, and it is hoped that within a short time a detailed description may be secured and the search problem may be worked out on a more concrete basis.

HARDING'S BONUS POLICY TO WIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, July 13.—President Harding's plea for deferred action on the soldiers' bonus bill will be carried out after a heated debate, Republican leaders of the senate predicted today.

One effect of the president's declaration that enactment of the bill "in the midst of the struggle for readjustment and restoration would greatly imperil the financial stability of the country," will be to line up additional senators in support of his suggestion that the bill be recommitted to the finance committee, it was stated.

A poll taken by Senator Curtis of Kansas the Republican "whip" before President Harding delivered his message, disclosed 14 Republicans and 7 Democratic senators prepared to vote for recommitment. Their number is expected to be increased, despite opposition to it centered largely on the Democratic side.

Democratic senators continued their criticism of the president's proposal today, it being their apparent intention to hold up Senator Penrose's motion to recommit the bill while they attacked the Republican administration and the Republican majority of the senate.

Republican leaders expressed the hope, however, that they would be able to force a vote on the Penrose motion before the end of today's session.

With Senator Underwood of Alabama the Democratic minority leader favoring the Penrose motion he having previously assailed the bill itself, Democratic senators opposed to it found new leadership in Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

TAGGING ALL THE RUNS.

Babe Gets Two Circuit Clouters Others Get Good Hurling.

The Indians don't overlook many hits. They won their second double header in three days by timely batting off Rush, Karr, Myers and Thormahlen of the Red Sox.

Babe Ruth is rearing along like an express train. The big Sam knocked out his 22nd and 23th homers at St. Louis, thereby helping the Yanks trim the Browns.

The Pirates gleaned seventeen hits off three Philly pitchers—Baumgartner, Sothoron and Hubbell—while Cooper breezed along to victory.

Four hits was the limit allowed the Cardinals by Jess Barnes, the Giant's expensive Boston boat.

Mullen at the Point Sunday.

James Mullen, one of the most popular trombonist along the Hudson valley will be the soloist with the Citizens' Band Sunday at Kingston Point Park. Jimmy is known throughout the valley as the man who makes the trombone laugh. During the world war he was with the 51st Pioneer Infantry band in France and always kept the boys entertained with his playing and singing. The program for Sunday will be announced later by Director Harry G. Maisenhelder.

Musical Gifts of Boys and Girls.

The highest musical endowments in male children are shown plainly in vocal and piano classes, where it seems inevitable that the most expert and brightest students are boys. For every musical girl, there appears to be five boys equally gifted. They have naturally a better idea of harmony and instinctively crave musical values, which, in the majority of cases, become submerged by their feminine rivals only by dint of hard study.—Exchange.

Mohammedans Venerate Sanctuary in Jerusalem.

The Mohammedan sanctuary in Jerusalem on the Mount of Abraham's and David's sacrifices echoes the splendor of Solomon's temple that once stood in that locality, writes J. F. Scheltema in Asia Magazine. With its latticed screens of ebony, its brocaded curtains, its stained glass and mosaics in their somewhat faded glory, the dome of the rock stands in the solitude of the sacred precinct like one of those places hewn of a single opal or turquoise we read of in oriental fairy tales.

Approaching it, the Moslem pilgrim has to observe a strict ceremonial. As he enters he puts his right foot forward, begging pardon for his sins and invoking God's mercy. Walking round the rock, he must keep it on his right hand, reversing the process followed when making the circuit of the Kaaba at Mecca. Before proceeding to the cave underneath, he must probe his heart and strive for humility of spirit, uttering the prayer of Solomon: "Oh God, forgive those who have sinned and relieve the injured!"

He firmly believes that the rock is supported by a palm tree rooted in one of the fair rivers of paradise, the tree in the shade of which the beautiful, martyred Asia, wife of Pharaoh, and Miriam, the sister of Moses, will slake the thirst of the Faithful on the day of resurrection.

After paying his respects to the dome of the rock, to its "tongue" (a broken column, slanting to the roof of the cave), to the marks of the Angel Gabriel's fingers and to the sword of Ali, Mahomet's valiant son-in-law, he visits the other shrines of the Holy Enclosure. There, in the heart of Jerusalem, are the dome of the ascent, where the prophet was lifted up when starting on his heavenly journey, and the dome of the chain. The chain that used to hang down from its ceiling was supposed to be possessed of miraculous properties. Whenever a judge had to decide in a difficult case between litigants who supported their conflicting claims by contradictory statements, he transferred his tribunal hither and invited them to touch the links of the chain while repeating their assertions. Then the truth came to light, for the chain could easily be seized by the veracious, but eluded the grasp of the iniquitous who tried by falsehood to get the best of his opponent.

One day, however, the oracle was baffled by a man accused of having borrowed money without paying it back. Now, he kept this money concealed in a hollow staff which he asked the plaintiff to hold for him while he, too, gripped the chain swearing that the sum he owed had been returned. The bystanders marveled greatly at the chain's failure to unravel the mystery of such clashing testimony, and soon afterward the wonder-working chain disappeared because, tradition says, it began to despair of sustaining its reputation for perspicacity among a population so full of fraudulent resources.

Gems Are Cheap in Tiflis.

If you want to buy a quart of diamonds for a dollar or two, go to Tiflis.

Tiflis is the capital of Georgia, one of the new republics that have risen in the Caucasus on the ruins of the Russian empire. The value of the Georgian ruble is worth hardly anything at all. But the dollar has such abnormal purchasing power in this nation of lost values that it seems less like money than magic. You can get a fine dinner at Tiflis for ten cents, and room rent in the best hotel for $1 a month.

The Bolsheviki have ruined Georgia. They have killed industry and trade and consequently the value of the native ruble. The swarms of refugees from Russia have sold their most precious possessions to Tiflis merchants for food and clothing, until the stores of the city have become stocked with diamonds and pearls and all kinds of precious things which were paid for perhaps with a plate of beans or a pair of socks.—New York Evening Post.

One Interview in 110 Years.

The Dalai Lama of Lhasa in Tibet has just given an interview to an electrical engineer. This is the first time that a Lama has talked with a European in 110 years. Lhasa is on a plateau, 11,000 feet high which is perhaps desirable as sanitation is non-existent. Tibet seems to want telegraphic communication with the outside world and there are faint signs of an industrial awakening. Mr. Fairley, a telegraph engineer, had an audience with "His Holiness," who proved to be kindly and very inquisitive. He also visited the Tibetan council called the "Council of Shapes." A twenty-four course luncheon followed.—Scientific American.

ARMY PLANES IN BOMBING TEST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

On Board U. S. S. Henderson off the Virginia Capes, July 13.—With the gods of war and weather willing, the former destroyer G-102 will go down to "Davy Jones' locker" today, the prey of airmen.

Cloudy weather prevailing early this morning made it questionable whether favorable weather conditions would prevail for the aerial attack on the destroyer.

Forty six army planes, under the command of Brigadier General Mitchell, are getting their opportunity to demonstrate their ability in sinking seacraft in conjunction with the aerial bombing tests which are being conducted by the navy. The navy is cooperating in today's test on the ex-German destroyer, but the land planes of the army, flying to an objective more than a hundred miles from their base, are leading in the attack.

Two types of planes have been selected by the army men for the attack, the big twin-motored Martin bomber and the speedier De Haviland battle plane. The Martin bombers are equipped with six 250 pound bombs each, and will fly in divisions of three planes. The smaller and speedier planes will carry two bombs apiece and fly in divisions of two.

No restrictions have been placed upon the army bombers. They may choose their own formation and method of attack, and may bomb the anchored destroyer from any altitude.

General Menoher, chief of the Army Air Service, is watching the tests today with Captain A. W. Johnson of the Naval Aviation Forces on board the U. S. S. Shawmut, the mother ship of the air forces which is cruising about close to the target.

A destroyer path has been formed from Hampton Roads to the target and elaborate preparations have been made for the rescue of any plane which may come to grief while at sea.

On the Henderson there is a large group of aerial experts, today's test being considered the most important yet held in the series.

BUILD PLATTEKILL ROAD NEXT YEAR

Connecting Link Between Kingston and Newburgh by Way of New Paltz on List For Early Attention —Ulster's Share Completed Years Ago.

The Newburgh News says that "After years of delay the improvement of the road connecting the North Plank and Plattekill highways will be undertaken next season. Incidentally the betwen Newburgh and Kingston by work will complete the improved route between Newburgh and Kingston by way of New Paltz."

Ulster county's share was completed years ago, but owing to the neglect of the Orange county authorities the few miles of road from the Orange county line is in wretched condition, and was never improved.

The News says that this connecting highway is No. 1 on the state-county list for reconstruction in Orange county the coming year. Under the Hewitt law, which governs all construction work, roads are listed in order, and their improvement is taken up accordingly.

If this stretch of road in Orange county is improved as contemplated it will mean much not only for Newburgh but for Kingston as well as it will carry considerable traffic that now detours to other roads to avoid the conditions that exist on that stretch of road in Orange county. When the road is completed it will make an ideal auto drive from Kingston to Newburgh by way of New Paltz over goods roads.

From Mosquito Great Headquarters.

South Rondout is said to believe that its plague of mosquitoes is caused by their being blown or scared out of Mingo Hollow, where the explosives plant is located. Stretch the theory a little further and you have a reason for the appearance of the pests all over Kingston, in many parts of which they were unknown before.

Sinn Feiners on June 25 wrecked a troop train travelling from Belfast and containing men of the Tenth Hussars who had formed part of the King's escort during the ceremonies in Belfast. A mine, which had been placed on the line at Avadoyle, County Armagh, exploded, and a number of carriages were hurled down the embankment. Twenty-five soldiers were killed, and a few score injured. Photo shows the cars down the embankment and the soldiers going through the ruins looking for some of the victims.

NIGHT PURSUIT LANDS BURGLAR

Sheriff Koltz and Under Sheriff Haulenbeck Capture Man Who Broke Into Garage And Escaped Under Muzzle of Revolver in Hands of Forde.

About 4 o'clock this morning Sheriff Koltz received a telephone call stating a garage of A. B. Frederick and Frank W. Forde on the Saugerties road a short distance south of Neul's Hotel, formerly the W. L. Fisher place, had been burglariously entered and that a man who had been in the building was around the neighborhood. Sheriff Koltz jumped into his touring car and came after Under-Sheriff Tunis Haulenbeck and they sped to the place. There they found Mr Forde and wife who told them that the garage had been wired with burglar alarms, so that a bell would ring in the house in case any of the windows were tampered with. That about 3:30 o'clock the bell attached to the burglar alarm wire from the garage rang and Mr. Forde getting up and looking out of a window toward the garage saw a man in the building moving about with a flashlight. Mr Forde seized a revolver loaded with shot-filled cartridges and followed by his wife hurried to the garage where he found the door open. Mr Forde ordered the man to come out and pointing the revolver at him told him to hold up his hands and back up against the building which the man did. Thinking that perhaps there might be other men in the garage he asked the fellow if there were others with him and he replied that there were. At this Mr. Forde turned his head dropping the revolver to his side and the burglar took to his heels at once and darted down the Saugerties road towards Kingston. Forde fired the revolver at him but the man was very fleet of foot and got away. After being told the above story by Mr. Forde and his wife who each gave a description of the man, Sheriff Koltz, Under-Sheriff Haulenbeck and Mr. Forde started with the automobile after the burglar. Going north to the West Shore railroad crossing they were told, after inquiry, by the crossing watchman that no one had been seen on the road or on the tracks since 2 o'clock. Sheriff Koltz and Haulenbeck then concluded that the fugitive had turned to the right while headed toward this city and went over to the Pine Bush road and would probably head north. They then went to the Katrine road at Marx's Hotel and turned toward the Pine Bush road where they met a man with a shotgun who informed them that he had been told of the entrance of the Forde garage and was lying in wait for him and would take care of him should he come along. He was told to keep up his vigil and the auto continued on its way. Soon after, not far from the Charles Hubscher farm, a man wearing a cap with coat on arm and answering the description given by Mr. Forde and wife was seen walking on the road toward them. When the man came near Mr. Forde told Sheriff Koltz, "He's the man." Under Sheriff Haulenbeck then asked him if he worked in that section, and as to the way to Kingston. The man said he was looking for work and came from Albany. Haulenbeck then jumped out of the auto and told the stranger to get in the car which he did and he was handcuffed. The car was then run back to the Forde garage and Mrs. Forde positively identified him as the one who had entered the garage. When searched a searchlight was found in his coat pocket, a bunch of fourteen keys, five being master keys for ordinary door locks, the others desk keys and Yale or Sergeant lock keys, also a desk clock in a morocco leather case lined with moire silk, no doubt stolen by him.

This morning in jail the man gave his name to Seth Jocelyn as John Worbinskie, age 49 years. He said he was born in Russia and came here from Albany, was married and had a wife in Russia. He will be taken before Justice of the Peace Carle in the town of Ulster on a charge of unlawful entry and with attempted burglary. So far as is known nothing was stolen as the burglar alarm arrangement worked to a nicety.

MRS. KABER HYSTERICAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Courthouse, Cleveland, Ohio, July 13.—Bursting into wild shrieks, Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber, alleged husband slayer, threw the court room into a near panic today when her trial was resumed.

Mrs. Kaber's wild actions followed receipt of an alleged "spirit message" from Dan Kaber, her husband, who was stabbed to death by hired assassins.

A bailiff caught her. She broke loose from his arms, falling to the floor. She was finally carried out by two bailiffs as her wild shrieks penetrated the courtroom.

The accused woman gave a terrified gasp as she read the purported message announcing that Kaber's spirit hovers at her side as she sits on trial charged with plotting his murder.

State's witnesses have testified she sought the aids of spirits to have him killed.

"Forgive me the wrong I have done you," says the murdered man's "message."

The "message" came by special delivery.

Mrs. Kaber, collapsed again after her trial resumed this afternoon. After sobbing convulsively, she fell into a dead swoon.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Jane Knifer of Ladleton died after a long illness. Funeral and interment in Claryville Sunday, July 10.

Sarah K. Deyo, widow of the late Ezekiel Ira Deyo, died at her home at New Paltz this morning in her 75th year. She is survived by four sons, Abraham W. of Highland, Hiram W. of Montclair, N. J., Jesse of Springtown and Charles W. of St. Louis, Mo., three daughters, Mrs. Edgar A. Radiker of Wallkill, Mrs. David Atkins of Pine Plains and Mrs. Jesse Fitch of Springtown, one brother, William C. Minard, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine Donaldson of Minnesota. The funeral will take place from her late residence on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, standard time, with interment in the family plot in the New Paltz Cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Butler Kingfield, wife of George J. Kingfield, was held this morning at her home, No. 80 West Pierpont street, at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 at St. Peter's Church, where a requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. J. Ostermann. The services were very largely attended by her many relatives and friends and the Society of Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Church attended the services in a body. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. At the conclusion of the Mass Herman La Tour sang "No Night There." The bearers were Frank Stenglein, Nicholas Hartman, Jacob Fahnrick and John Gitty. Father Ostermann accompanied the remains to St. Peter's Cemetery, where the committal services were held and the interment in the family plot.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Vanderlyn Council, Daughters of America, of this city held their regular meeting Tuesday evening with very large membership present. Their deputy state councilor, Mrs. Suzanne Decker of Highland was present and duly installed the officers in a very pleasing manner. The councilor extended a hearty welcome to all present. They also initiated two candidates. There were several guests from Imperial Chapter, Saugerties, and everything passed off satisfactory. The members of the council showed their appreciation of the services of the D. S. C. by presenting her with a handsome cut glass flower vase, which she accepted in a pleasing manner. The council may feel congratulated on their corps of officers. The evening closed with refreshments and all left in the early morning hours, feeling that they had spent several pleasant hours at a D. of A. session.

Martin to Box Sept. 3.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., July 13.—Bob Martin, soldier champion, who hammered Frank Moran into submission in seven rounds in New York last night, will fight in Baltimore, Saturday, September 3, it was made known today by Spike Webb, boxing instructor at the Naval Academy. It is believed his opponent will be either Captain Bob Roper or Fay Kayser of Cumberland, both ex-soldiers. The bout will be staged at Fifth Regiment Armory during "Buddie week" and it is expected the big auditorium will be jammed with ex-service men.

Szechenyi Detained.

J. A. STILLMAN RESTS HIS CASE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 13.—Counsel for James A. Stillman rested their case in the multi-millionaire's suit for absolute divorce from Mrs. "Fifi" Potter Stillman shortly before noon today and a protracted, bitter legal wrangle which ensued immediately afterwards resulted in a victory for the defense, when Referee Daniel J. Gleason ordered stricken from the record all references in the testimony of Dr. Hugh Russell, Buffalo, N. Y., osteopath, to a trip Mrs. Stillman was alleged to have made to Boston.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cadwalder and daughter of Philadelphia are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Stahl at their home 139 Prospect street.

Mrs. Charles Paulson and daughter, Arlene, of Jersey City, are spending their vacation at the home of their cousin, Mrs. J. S. Watson on Downs street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zwecker of Poughkeepsie, formerly of this city, are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a ten pound son at their home in the Bridge City.

Mr. and Mrs. William Fetter and Mr and Mrs. Carl Schober and daughter Charlotte of Mt. Vernon, New York, are guests of Mrs. Carrie Van Benschoten of 732 Broadway.

Mrs. McCabe, mother of John J. McCabe of 294 Wall street, who has been in New York city for a few months undergoing treatment for an injury to one of her knees caused by a fall, has returned home much improved.

Miss Anna M. Craig of 356 Mott avenue, the Bronx, New York city, is spending her vacation at the home of her brother, James D. Craig, 58 Van Buren street, this city. Miss Craig is accompanied by Miss Blanche E. Wadsworth, who will remain here for some time.

Lake Erie's First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse on Lake Erie was built at Erie in 1818, the year the "Walk-in-the-Water" appeared. In 1829 Cleveland had its first lighthouse. It stood on the bluff on Main and Water streets, overlooking river and lake. It had a sturdy tower of brick that was replaced in 1872. It was 83 feet high, but towered 157 feet above the water. Its white light was visible about 21 miles. Its original cost was $8,722, this including the substantial keeper's house. The lamps consumed 301 gallons of "mineral oil" per year. In 1892 it was discontinued, a modern lighthouse replacing it.

Various Stages of the World.

Scientists, for purposes of convenience, have placed all peoples and all states of savagery, barbarism and civilization into four arbitrary stages—the two ages of stone, the Paleolithic or Ancient Stone age, and the Neolithic, or Newer Stone age, the age of Copper or Bronze, and the age of Iron, according to knowledge or lack of knowledge of these materials. Paleolithic men were very crude workmen in stone, but later Neolithic men were finished workmen in the material. In the age of Copper or Bronze these metals have displaced stone. These in turn to yield to a knowledge of working iron.

AVIATOR FALLS AT SHANDAKEN

Basil Rowe, of Shandaken, an aviator located at Mineola, L. I., came up to Shandaken Tuesday on his way to Fleischmanns in a Haviland scout plane, where he was going to take summer visitors out during the season.

This afternoon he took Benjamin Guinick, an old school chum, up for a ride, and while on his way back to the landing place struck an air pocket and the plane fell. The top of an apple tree was the first object struck and there a part of the plane hung, the motor and some of the other parts going into an excavation for a cellar on the property of a man named Finch.

Almost miraculously, no one was hurt.

ANTI-BEER BILL SURE TO PASS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 13.—The Campbell-Willis "anti-beer bill" will be passed by an overwhelming majority of the senate, even Republican and Democratic senators lined up against it admitted today.

The question of the constitutionality of the restrictions it imposes upon physicians in prescribing wine, whiskey and beer for the sick will probably be carried to the United States supreme court.

Opponents of the bill concede that the opposition in the senate will hardly muster 20 votes despite the announcement of powerful Republican leaders like Lodge of Massachusetts; Knox of Pennsylvania and Wadsworth, of New York, that they will vote against it.

THE SLEEPERS AWOKE

In the Clutch of the Law and Are Ordered Out.

William Dudley, Louis Shaw and George Davidson, the three strangers who were awakened from profound slumber at an early hour this morning, were later in the day given a chance to get out of town by Judge Schirick with a warning not to come back. They were found in a baggage car on the U. & D. tracks, near the freight house on Cornell street, by the police who were hunting for the fire bug who attempted to destroy the freight house as told elsewhere.

Harvey Delamater of this city, who was found at the time asleep in an out house nearby was discharged with a suspended sentence.

All four were charged with trespassing on railroad property, and none of them knew of the fire bug's attempt as they were all soundly sleeping and had not even heard the fire alarm bell ring.

Annual Picnic at Forsyth Park.

The annual church and Bible school picnic of the Church of the Comforter will be held Thursday, July 14, at Forsyth Park. There will be a refreshment table with ice cream candy, soft drinks, hot dog sandwiches and hot coffee. It is hoped that all the members of the parish and of the Bible school class will be present.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, July 13.—The W. C. T. U. will go on a picnic to Kingston Point Park, Thursday, July 14. Those going will kindly meet at the post office at 10:30 o'clock. A hot dinner will be served at 12 o'clock. Members and their families are invited to attend.

Chicken Supper at East Kingston.

The ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Church at East Kingston will give a chicken supper Thursday evening, July 14, at the home of C. L. Saunders beginning at 6 o'clock.

Geniuses of Mixed Parentage.

Mating of that eminent Jewish tragedian, Junius Brutus Booth the elder, with a Christian, produced a triple progeny that lent a surpassing luster to the American stage, says Walter Hurt, in the Detroit Jewish Chronicle. Of this trio, the most renowned was Edwin Booth, the world's greatest Hamlet. As for his younger brother, John Wilkes Booth, although his memory is marred and his abilities are obscured by his tragic deed in Ford's theater in Washington, he is reputed to have been the greatest genius of a family phenomenally conspicuous for its histrionic gifts. Another brother, Junius Brutus Booth, Jr., was scarcely less accomplished.

Our Glorious Emblem.

When Vermont and Kentucky were admitted to the Union congress decreed that after May 1, 1795, "the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union be fifteen stars, white in a blue field." It was seen that the addition of a stripe for every new state would change the aspect of the flag from time to time, so on April 4, 1818, congress passed a resolution reducing the number of stripes to thirteen (one for each of the original colonies) and declaring that a new star should be added for each state. Thus for twenty-three years the official flag had fifteen stripes.

Manufacturing Billiard Balls.

Quite large elephant tusks are a requisite in the making of billiard balls. They are first cut into the required length, forming blocks from which the balls are to be carved. These blocks are placed in the hands of expert cutters who mark the stand and measurements of circumference, after which the block goes to the cutter and is gradually cut by machine into spherical form. The process of polishing is done after six months, during which period the balls are kept in special dark drying chambers.

LOUGHRAN GIVES PLUMBERS $7

The large force of plumbers from the shop of B. Loughran Co. that have been on strike for over three weeks because the employing plumbers had refused to pay $7 a day and offered $6 a day, returned to work this morning at the wage scale of $7 a day. An agreement was reported several days ago between the union and master plumbers at $6.50 per day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—The stock market opened this morning, with general gains throughout the list. Atlantic Gulf rose ⅝ to 24¼. American Sugar rose ⅝ to 67½. American Tobacco rose ⅝ to 121¼. Baldwin Locomotive was up ¼ to 75¼. U. S. Steel opened unchanged to 74¼. Studebaker declined ⅛ to 80⅝. General Motors rose ⅛ to 11⅛. Royal Dutch advanced ⅝ to 57. Bethlehem Steel "B" declined ½ to 48⅜. General Asphalt rose ⅝ to 49⅜. U. S Rubber was up ¼ to 48¼ and Crucible Steel rose ⅛ to 56¼.

Closing out of some accounts caused weakness in many issues during the forenoon as about the only demands for stocks was from shorts. Many of the lower price issues were in supply.

The feature of the market in the afternoon was another sudden advance in Mexican Petroleum, that stock advancing from 99¼ to 103½. Movements in other issues were irregular, but most of the active stocks moved up from the low levels. International Harvester rallied to 74⅜. The motor stocks were again subjected to pressure, Studebaker yielding over 2 points to 79¼, followed by a rally to 80.

Rose Always Loved.

The rose has been a favorite from earliest times. So deep a hold has it on the affections of the people that it is often spoken of as the "queen of flowers." It has figured in the literature of all ages and all nations. People in all stations of life yield homage to its beauty of form and color and to its delicious fragrance. It is loved by poor and rich alike. It is grown in the dooryards of the least pretentious cottages, where often the occupants are stinted in food and raiment, as well as on the grounds of large estates, where abound the choicest things that money can buy. It is also grown in immense quantities under glass and is the most popular winter cut flower for all occasions.

Hanging Pictures.

No excuse is possible for the room plastered with pictures. While we may not care to go to the extremes of the esthetic Japanese, allowing only one at a time to delight the eye, it is certain that any picture of exquisite beauty deserves to be hung far enough apart from others so that it can be enjoyed. The better the picture the better it deserves to be hung by itself. On the other hand a small picture alone on a large wall is not advisable. Let common sense help you to place it low enough and important enough so it will stand out and yet not be lost in an ocean of wall paper.

DUCK RAISING IS PROFITABLE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Although ducks do not appear to be as well adapted as chickens as a source of income to average farm conditions, yet many farmers are finding duck raising profitable as a side issue to their other farm operations. The demand for table ducks in the cities seems to be on the increase.

The period of incubation for ducks' eggs is 28 days, except for the Muscovy duck, which is 33 to 35 days. The eggs may be hatched either naturally by hens or ducks or artificially in incubators. Strong, fertile eggs are a prime essential to good hatching and are obtained only from stock properly mated and kept under the best possible conditions to secure health and vigor. Eggs from overfat breeding stock do not usually produce a large percentage of strong ducklings. Pekin and Indian Runner ducks rarely sit; consequently, if natural methods of incubation are to be used the eggs are usually hatched under hens. Duck eggs should be washed if dirty, for it does not appear to injure their hatching qualities.

Before setting a hen dust her thoroughly with insect powder. In applying this powder hold the hen by the feet, with her head hanging down, and work it thoroughly into the feathers, giving special attention around the vent and under the wings. Sitting hens should be fed whole or cracked grains, such as corn or wheat. Place 9 to 11 ducks' eggs under a hen, depending on her size and the season of the year, using the smaller number of eggs in cold weather and the larger number in warm weather. Confine the hens at hatching time and do not disturb them until they become restless, when it may be best to remove the ducklings that hatched first.

Hens must be well cared for in hatching ducks' eggs, as the period of incubation is a week longer than that of hens' eggs. It usually takes ducklings from 24 to 48 hours to hatch after they pick the shells; therefore it is advisable to allow the hen to get off the nest for feed and water when the first ducklings pick the shell and then confine her to the nest until the hatching is over. Ducks' eggs need more moisture than hens' eggs at hatching time, as it takes the ducks much longer to get out of the shell. Poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture advise, therefore, that the eggs should be sprinkled liberally with warm water previous to hatching.

All duck eggs should be tested at least twice during incubation, preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days, and the infertile eggs and those with dead germs removed. Dead germs in duck eggs decompose very rapidly and are often detected by their odor and should be removed from the incubator.

Duck eggs having pure white shells can be tested as early as the fourth or fifth day and the infertile eggs sold to bakers for use in the kitchen.

Ducks are much easier to brood artificially than chickens, but they may also be raised under hens successfully. If raised by the latter method, it is advisable to confine the hens and allow the ducklings free range, as the hens are apt to wander too far away with their broods. Ducklings which are to be sold as green ducks are not usually allowed much range, but are fed heavily and forced for rapid growth. The ducklings which are to be kept for breeding should have the web of their feet punched, using a different number of punch marks for each year so that their age can be readily determined.

SELECT EGGS FOR SETTING

Eggs that are abnormally small and poorly shaped should not be used for incubation; neither should eggs that have thin or very porous shells, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. If possible, eggs should be set when fresh, and it is never advisable to use for hatching eggs that are more than two weeks old. One of the quickest ways to obtain uniformity in the off spring is to select uniformly good-sized eggs of the same color.

Early Irish Coin.

One of the early coins in Ireland was the eagle, made of base metal and current about 1272, but an earlier coin was the farthing, made of silver, during the reigns of King John, and now very rare and of great value.

SHE ALSO KNEW TENNYSON

The man with the superior air was a poetic business man. He frequently patronized a small lunchroom near his office. When he was not selling eggs at wholesale or something, he liked to read verse. His favorite was Tennyson's "Idylls of the King." And because he felt that he knew so much about it he thought he would have a little fun with the lunchroom waitresses, in a superior sort of way.

It began by naming the girls after the heroines in the poem. His regular waitress was a tall, gauntish person, but somewhat queenly as she bore down on him with a plate of hash. Her real name was Sadie.

"Sadie," he announced one night, "hereafter I'm going to call you Guinevere. Mind?"

"I should worry," said the waitress, shifting her gum, "but who's she?"

"The bride of King Arthur," was the reply.

"Awri, but I hope she's respectable. I ain't seen that film."

So it went. All the girls were properly renamed. And then one day a new waitress was on the job. She was small and dark, & immediately pretty, he thought.

"I haven't named you yet," he told her after a couple of nights.

Then he explained his little indoor sport.

"I'll let you be Elaine," he said.

"Why not?"

"Tennyson says she was fair. I'm a brunette. Elaine the fair, Elaine the beautiful, Elaine the lily maid of Astolat.' Evidently you don't remember how the lines went."

The superior bookworm called for his check.—New York Sun.

CULTIVATE HABIT OF THRIFT

Practice Means That One Will Be Ready to Seize Opportunity When It Comes.

Practice thrift habitually. Make it as much a part of your routine as eating and sleeping. Get yourself systematized. Work on a definite schedule. Save regular amounts. Plan your work and your actions so that you will have no idle time, no lost motion, no wasted energy.

These are among the secrets of success, happiness and progress.

The time to begin the cultivation of thrift habits is now.

The most important message that can be conveyed to the people of this nation today is: "Get the thrift habit." Practice thrift not for a brief interval or intermittently, but habitually.

Disraeli said, "The greatest secret of success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes."

This brief sentence furnishes one of the best reasons for practicing thrift that ever has been given. It prompts a phase of the question to which not enough attention is paid. Ordinarily thrift is looked upon as a means of safeguarding one against possible emergencies or of building up an accumulation of money for some definite purpose. But there are many unexpected turns in the pathway of life.—Thrift Magazine.

Friendly Warning.

Under the caption "A Friendly Hint" the following forcibly worded advertisement in Rivington's New York Gazette of January 18, 1775, was directed against a resident who had made a grievous financial error, very much to his own advantage:

"If a merchant of this city who lives near the Exchange, not many miles from Broad street, does not within 14 days from the above date return £10 which, by mistake, he was overpaid in settling an account, a narrative of the whole transaction, with his name at length, will be published in a future paper and the truth of it supported by an affidavit. If, in the meantime, the gentleman should recollect the error and will make any overtures to Mr. Boole at Mrs. Haight's, in Smith street, secrecy will be observed."

Advertisers at First Shy.

It took several years after the establishment of newspapers in America for advertising to become popular. John Campbell, the postmaster of Boston, who, in 1704, started the Boston News Letter, the first real newspaper in this country, had great difficulty in persuading his townspeople to advertise their wares or their wants. William Bradford and Peter Zenger in New York were hardly more fortunate at first, and even Benjamin Franklin, for many years after he began the publication of the Pennsylvania Gazette, found his advertising columns very meager. After 1800, however, the reluctance to advertise died away and all the leading papers showed that they were well supported.

To Be Exact.

"Do you called on the famous novelist?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Gushes.

"Did you find him in a brown study?"

"Why, no. I think the room was finished in blue."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Women Athletes Too Energetic.

Glass Workers Lose Sight.

Many of the workmen in the glass factories of Venice begin to lose their sight after they have passed their 50th year and soon become totally blind. The impairment of vision is caused by the excessive heat and the glare from the glass furnaces.

EXPRESS WORKERS' WAGE TO BE CUT

Railway Labor Board Orders 6 Cents an Hour Lopped Off—Were Increased 16 Cents an Hour in 1920.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, July 13.—Payrolls of the American Railway Express Company will be reduced approximately $8,000,000 annually, it is estimated today, as a result of wage reductions for employes ordered by the United States Railway Labor Board. The board ordered a cut of 6 cents an hour, effective August 1, in the pay of approximately 5,000 workers. Increases of approximately 16 cents an hour were given the express workers in 1920.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mazzacone-Altimare.

Glasco, July 13.—John Mazzaccone, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mazzaccone, and Miss Mary Altimare, only living child of Michele Altimare, were married Monday, July 11, in New Jersey.

Lauber-Schubbard.

At 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Miss Lillian E. Shubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Shubbard, of Massell Park, Baltimore, Md., became the bride of Caikin G. Lauber, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lauber, of Ellenville, N. Y. The ceremony, which was with the ring, took place at the bride's home, the Rev. Frank Fielding, of Sexton M. E. Church, Baltimore, officiating. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Elma Grimt of Irvington, Baltimore, and Otto Johnson, Jr., of New York city. The bride is a member of the Sexton Methodist Church of Baltimore and active in all social centers. The groom is a graduate of Pratt School of Electrical Engineering and served a number of months in the signal service during the late war. He has for the past year been engaged in California and other western states. After a wedding journey spent in New York city and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Lauber will return to Grand Falls, Montana, where he has an excellent position awaiting him. The good wishes of their many friends go with them for a prosperous journey through life.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A large tree at the Judge Severyn B. Sharpe property, near the corner of Albany and Clinton avenues with long extending roots, which tree because of decay has been an eyesore for a number of years is being cut down. There are two or three others along the Albany avenue front which if cut down would be an improvement to that section as they take up part of the sidewalk.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

Mayor Bailey of Denver, Commander of Legion Post, One of the First Contributors.

Presidential golf paraphernalia enought to last the four-year term was received by President Harding when Miss Pauline Trumbo entered the White House bearing golf sticks and bag and golf balls from many parts of the country. The sticks and bag, chosen by "Chick" Evans, open golf champion, are the gift of the Fort Morgan (Colo.) post of the American Legion to the nation's chief executive.

Miss Pauline Trumbo.

In every city and state visited the mayor or governor contributed an engraved golf ball for President Harding.

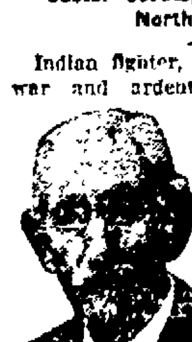
"Sargint" James Flanagan, Last of Custer Scouts, Laid to Rest in North Dakota.

Indian fighter, veteran of the Civil war and ardent patriot, "Sargint" James Flanagan, eighty-four years old and actually the last surviving scout of General Custer's Seventh cavalry, massacred on the Little Big Horn, was laid to rest by the American Legion in Mandan, N. D., in one of the most unique and impressive funeral ceremonies ever witnessed in the northwest.



Veterans of five wars participated in the ceremonies. A faltering but proud trio of Grand Army survivors carried at the head of the cortege the same colors which the old sergeant for years had borne as a color guard. Stalwart young veterans of the World war sent the funeral volley crashing over the patriot's grave.

"Sargint" Flanagan was a native of Gre[illegible], Mass. [illegible] mid-fifties he joined the [illegible] to the gold fields of California. He drifted back to Ohio and joined the 11th Regiment of Ohio Cavalry, serving through the Civil war. Later he enlisted in the Seventh cavalry at Fort Lincoln.

POPULAR SIGNAL CORPS GIRL

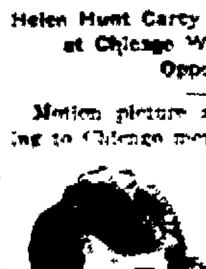
Motion picture actresses are alluring to Chicago members of the American Legion, but when it comes to a showdown they vote for their ex-service comrades. This was demonstrated when Miss Helen Hunt Carey, a former signal corps girl, was voted the most popular girl in Chicago at the Legionnaire club show.



Miss Carey's total of votes was 85,234, which was 5,000 more than her nearest rival, a well known movie actress, got. When Miss Carey returned from France, after serving 14 months in the A. E. F., she was elected commander of Signal Corps post of the American Legion, composed of former signal corps girls and personnel.

Juvenile Measure.

A little girl from the West who is visiting us has her own way of measuring distance. When asked by a caller where her home was, she replied: "Two schools and two groups from here."—Boston Transcript.

HOW

SCIENCE HAS OVERCOME DREADED POTATO BUG.—The Potato Magazine calls attention to the fact that certain regions of the upper peninsula of Michigan have been virtually freed of that notorious pest, the potato bug, by the operations of a tiny parasitic fly which lays its eggs upon the striped beetle. Grubs hatched from these eggs bore into the potato bug's body and eat out his inside works.

If it were not for parasites that prey upon the potato bug, it would scarce be possible to grow any potatoes in this country, despite all the farmer could do to poison the insect with paris green.

That destructive beetle was originally native to mountain districts of Colorado, where it fed on a wild variety of potato plant called the "sand bur." It is supposed to have been carried into Missouri by the cattle traffic, and in 1864 it crossed the Mississippi river. In the early seventies it had crossed the Detroit river and Lake Erie was literally alive with potato bugs, passengers on ships or whatever else would keep them afloat. They reached the Atlantic coast in 1878, and the beaches were soon swarming with them. Vessels were boarded by them in such numbers that hatches had to be battened down.

At that period and for some time afterward much alarm was felt lest the potato would become an extinct vegetable in the United States. But nature has a way of dealing with such mischiefs, and before long parasitic enemies of the beetle multiplied in such numbers as to make possible its control.

The above-mentioned fly, which has done such good work in Michigan, will be colonized in other parts of the country, and may solve the potato bug problem for good and all.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ALBERTA'S CLAIMS TO FAME

How Northwestern Canadian Province "Manufactures" Weather for the United States.

The prairie provinces of Canada—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—are not without their bids of fame. For example:

The myriad of wild ducks, geese, and other migratory fowl that fly northward each spring are for the most part bound for the northern parts of the three prairie provinces, where they build their nests and rear their young.

And much of the weather of the United States is manufactured in Alberta. This is not an idle fancy. The United States weather bureau recognizes that a large number of what are technically known as "disturbances" originate near the little town of Medicine Hat, a few miles over the Canadian line north of Montana, sweep down along the roots of the Rockies and spread out to the eastward, carrying in their trains cold waves, windstorms, rain, snow and blizzards.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

How England Honors War Dogs.

War dogs have not been forgotten altogether and a movement is on foot in England to place a monument in Kensington Gardens, London, in memory of the dogs that played important parts in the great war. The suggested memorial may take the form of four sculptured dogs representing various breeds and facing the four points of the compass. The movement has been received with considerable approval and it is likely that there will be little trouble in raising the money necessary to carry the project through. This well-merited recognition of the honorable part played by dogs is in line with the placing of a tablet in memory of the horses and mules that served in the war by the War department offices.

How Canary Uses Towel.

"Yes," observed the Lady of the House, "I've taught my canary to use a bath towel."

"How did you manage to do that?" inquired the interested visitor.

"Well," answered the Lady of the House, "after taking his bath the canary would nearly break his neck trying to get dry. So I put a couple of pieces of bath towel on the top of the cage. Now as soon as he has taken his bath he hops up on these pieces of towel and rubs himself against them until he is dry."—New York Sun.

How Paper Mill Waste Is Used.

The tremendous amount of research work being done in all fields of manufacture to convert waste into wealth is showing gratifying results in the operation of sulphite mills through the recovery of alcohol and solid fuel from waste liquors. The alcohol is called sulphite spirit and while entirely unlike wood alcohol it is equally valuable for power purposes being now in steady use by the omnibuses of London.

Bud Houser, of the Oxnard (Cal.) High School, who defeated Pat McDonald, world champion shot putter, in the recent National A. A. U. championship meet at Pasadena, Cal. Young Houser won with a heave of forty-six feet eleven and three-quarter inches.

Isle Royale in Lake Superior.

Isle Royale is the largest of a group of small islands in Lake Superior. They formerly constituted a county, but now form a part of Houghton county, Michigan. Isle Rayale, known principally as a summer resort, is about forty-five miles long and nine miles wide. The island is about eight hours' ride by steamer from Duluth, Minn., but is nearer to Port Arthur, Ont.

GEN. PILSUDSKI'S LIFE ATTEMPTED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Copenhagen, July 13.—Discovery of a plot to overthrow the Polish government at Warsaw was followed by an attempt to assassinate General Pilsudski, leader of the Polish army, said an unconfirmed report from Warsaw to the Berlin Tienden today.

The attempt to kill General Pilsudski was frustrated by bad marksmanship. Several men entered General Pilsudski's quarters and fired at him, but all missed. Later several arrests were made.

BOB MARTIN HURDLES MORAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 13.—Bob Martin is coming along.

The lanky West Virginia "Hill Billy" has taken a long step forward in the heavyweight division today by his knock-out victory over Frank Moran.

In stretching the veteran Pittsburgh battler on the canvas for the count in seven rounds Martin accomplished something that established him as a prolific hitter, more, he is the only boxer aside from Fred Fulton, who has scored a knock-out over Moran in recent years.

No matter what may be said about Moran's class as a ringster, the fact remains that he is one of the most rugged fighters this country has ever produced. He may be slow. He certainly lacks science and he has never been known to over-train for any battle he ever fought. But it takes a good man to put him away, and Bob Martin did it.

"He's a good, willing, hard-hitting lad," they said. "When he learns how to punch and how to follow up an advantage he'll be right there among 'em."

Today he has apparently overcome both of these handicaps. He used his left on Moran with punishing effect, more so, perhaps, because he hurt his right early in the bout. And he kept after the blonde Pittsburgher from the first gong to the finish.

One more thing about this soldier champion—he can take a stout wallop and shake it off with ease. Moran bounced Mary Ann off Martin's features a number of times in last night's fracas and all Martin did was come back for more.

As he ranks today Martin is not ready to battle for the heavyweight championship of the world but he is surely coming along, and with the immense interest that is being shown in the heavyweight division the boxing public is mighty glad to see such boxers as Tom Gibbons, Bob Martin, Harry Greb and Captain Bob Roper crowd into the spotlight.

Dog Loyalty.

That loyalty, burning bright and true to the last spark of life, that unfailing welcome on which a man can count more surely than on any human love—indeed, there is no secret in a man's love for a dog, however we may wonder at the dog's love for the man. —R. P. Utter in the Century Magazine.

CIGARETTE SET BUS ON FIRE

This morning shortly aften 10 o'clock as one of Kidd's big auto buses running between Kingston and New Paltz was on its way up Broadway in charge of Chauffeur Martin Jordan, the smell of smoke filled the interior, and Jordan brought the car to a stop at McEntee street, when it was found that the cushion on the rear seat and part of the wood work was on fire.

A still alarm of fire was sent in to the Central Fire Station, but the fire was extinguished before the firemen reached the scene due to the fact that Hugh F. Connelly, whose place of business is at the corner of Broadway and Newkirk avenue, stretched his garden hose to the bus and played a stream of water on the fire.

Chief Chipp, of the fire department, who investigated, said that the fire was caused by one of the men passengers in the rear seat carelessly dropping a lighted cigarette on the floor. Residents nearby say that the three men who it is thought caused the fire alighted from the bus and walked away without attempting to give Chauffeur Jordan any assistance to save the bus from being destroyed by the fire.

Flowers Found New Homes.

It is not generally known that the belladonna lily was procured from South America in 1593, while the Guernsey lily was brought from Japan and was first cultivated at the beginning of the seventeenth century in the garden of an Englishman in Paris. This plant is said to have derived its name from the following episode. A ship, laden with bulbs, was wrecked off the coast of Guernsey. A number of the bulbs were cast upon the shore and took root in the soil, where they grew rapidly.
